"Bis dat qui cito dat."

THE Colonies form such an important portion of our Empire that a history of the leading families, and their connection with the mother country, cannot fail to be of interest.

The preparation of this work has already been the means of bringing together kinsfolk from both sides of the globe, and I trust that the result of my labours may still further tend to promote that family love and unity which has always been the characteristic trait of our race.

I have received, from every one of my correspondents, unvarying politeness and attention—from many, most important assistance—and to all I now beg to return my best and sincerest acknowledgments.

Many imperfections will be apparent, I fear, to the critic of these pages, but I may be permitted to say that the popularity of "BURKE'S LANDED GENTRY" was not lessened by the fact that faults were numerous in the first edition. The publication of this volume, by inviting public criticism, is the only way to draw forth more detailed and correct information on the subject, and I cordially ask all persons interested to put themselves into direct communication with me, so that any points they may raise could be dealt with in a subsequent edition. I need not say that it will afford me much pleasure to reply to any questions affecting the various memoirs.

THE EDITOR.

Captain Fawcett was accorded the honour of taking home the despatches, and reporting the account of the Battle of Marburg (1760) to King GEORGE II. This he did in the German language. The young officer at once obtained his majority, and, after declining offers from FREDERICK THE GREAT, who gave him his portrait, he finally rose to be adjutant-general of the army and governor of Chelsea Hospital. In 1799, during the absence of H.R.H. the Duke of York in Holland, General Fawcett was appointed commander-in-chief. Lineage.

The ancestors of this family settled at Kington, Thornbury, co. Gloucester, England, a copyhold belonging to the Duke of Buckingham. The family, of which there are still many branches existing, is one of the oldest in Gloucestershire, and has now been seated at Kington House for nearly five centuries.

The Suffolk family of Thurston, like the Kentish line, is now extinct, and it is believed that these, the Thurstons, of Gloucestershire, are the only direct descendants of John Turstin, the branches of whose family in eos. Norfolk, Suffolk, and Kent called themselves Turstin, Thurston, and Thruston, and in the western counties assumed the name of Basset.

RICHARD TURSTIN, lord of the manor of Chemingnarde, near Thornbury, Witelai Hundred, co. Gloucester, A.D. 1399, came out of the south of Norfolk, where the family was numerous. He claimed a common origin with the Bassets, and acquired Chemingnarde from William and Maud Stafford. On his death, in 1413, the family appears to have broken up and to have found new homes at Wootton-under-Edge, Thornbury, and other places. His great grandson,

ROBERT THURSTIN, of Kington House, Thornbury, co. Gloucester, d. 1484, and was buried in the north chapel of Thornbury church. His grandson,

RICHARD THURSTON, Esq. of Kington House, Thornbury, d. 1541, and was buried at Thornbury church, leaving a son,

JOHN THURSTON, Esq. of Kington House, Thornbury, b. 1678; m. Ursula Parnell, of Thornbury, and d. in 1739. His third son,

SAMUEL THURSTON, Esq. of Kington House, m. Mary Lewis, of Nether Stowey, co. Somerset, and was father of HORATIO THURSTON, Esq. of Kington House, b. 1757; m. 25th November, 1786, Elizabeth, daughter of Rear-Admiral Holmes, of H.M.S. The Davenports descend from Ormus de Davenport, living in the time of the Conquest.

This family was seated at Great Wigston, in Leicestershire, in the 16th century, where they resided at the Moated House, which was standing till about 1745, the site being now the property of Sir Samuel Davenport's brother, Mr. Henry Devereux Davenport. There is a tradition in the family that this property was bought for a younger son of the Davenports of Bramhall, Cheshire, in the 16th century. In that century (1553) Thomas Davynporte was mayor of Leicester. He entertained MARY QUEEN OF SCOTS in Leicester Castle. His son purchased lands at Great Wigston, in the parish registers of which place entries occur relating to the family from the commencement of the registers in 1569. Numerous monumental tablets exist in the parish church of Great Wigston, of which some members of the family were vicars.

is famous as having been the patron of Caxton, the printer, and an Archbishop Bouchier, who was killed at the battle of Barnet, is interred at Westminster Abbey.

THOMAS BOWKER, Esq., left co. Westmoreland to settle in Northumberland. He was father of several children, amongst whom were Benjamin and MILES; the latter gentleman,

Lineage.

According to tradition the ancestors of the Aberdeenshire family of Gill came originally from Cumberland (where, at a very early period, they owned lands, amongst others the barony of Gillsland) into Scotland. Certain it is that the surname is of great antiquity in both countries.

In 1296, Patrick del Gyle is amongst the gentlemen of Peeblesshire who sign the Ragman Roll (see "Chambers' Peeblesshire," p. 65). This prefix "del" was not uncommon at that period. The above Patrick Gill, as well as some others of the surname, appear in various of the Scotch counties as people of some position.

It has been the constant family tradition that this family is directly descended from a John Gill, who was Provost of Perth early in the 15th century. The various records of Perth show that the family had then been very flourishing, and besides owning the lands of Haltoun and Torsopy, in the county of Perth (John Gill, lord of Torsopy, appears as witness to a charter, signed at Edinburgh, 11th February, 1366), held such positions of trust and distinction as proved them to be worthy men.

John Gill, of Haltoun, was burgess, baillie, and afterwards, 1403, provost of Perth. Another John Gill, burgess of Perth (probably father of the former) is mentioned frequently in the town records from 1328 downwards. John Gill, burgess of Perth, and M.P. for that town, 1364, 1367, 1369 and 1373, together with the old family of the Mercers, of Aldie, takes a prominent part, at this period, in the management of public affairs, and in 1406—7 proceeds to Paris with Sir Walter Stewart of Ralston, and others, to renew the league between Scotland and France. He is mentioned as deceased between 10th June, 1418, and 27th July, 1420. In 1410, John Gill (probably a son of the last-mentioned John Gill) was one of the three first lecturers on philosophy and logic in St. Andrew's University, under bishop Henry Wardlaw, the pious founder of that seat of learning. The family, much reduced in circumstances, appear in the records of Perthshire as late as 1648.

The Aberdeenshire branch are believed to have left Perthshire, and to have settled in Aberdeenshire, in the early half of the 16th century. Most probably they had done so to escape some of the constant feuds only too common at that period, but owing to the very defective state of the registers and records generally (the Aberdeen and Banff wills were unfortunately nearly all destroyed by fire previous to 1721), the connection of this family with their more southern progenitors cannot well be traced.

ALEXANDER GILL, b. about 1550, who settled at Auchlyne, in the parish of Aberdour, in the Buchan district of Aberdeenshire, m. Barbara Findlay, and was dead before 18th March, 1618. Their son,

C. (initials on tombstone; Cumming may have been the maiden name of Mrs. Gill, as a family of this surname are interred in an adjoining grave). Many members of the Gill family were interred at Boyndie, although there are only two tombstones there. Issue, two sons,

Lineage.

SIR SAMUEL WILSON is paternally of a branch of the family of Wilson, settled in the north of Ireland. In the female line he claims descent from the ancient historic house of Kirkpatrick, of Closeburn, Dumfriesshire, traceable back to IVONE KIRKPATRICK, who lived in the time of DAVID I, and witnessed a charter of Robert Brus, Lord of Annandale, to the monks of Abbeyholm. In the troublous times of the latter half of the 17th century, three brothers (so says tradition) of the chief of the Closeburn family, crossed in an open boat from Gallo-way to the county of Antrim, landed at the Giant's Causeway, and settled in the north of Ireland, where several families descended from them are still resident. One of these,

JAMES KIRKPATRICK, of Kinflay, co. Antrim, had a daughter, ELIZABETH KIRKPATRICK, b. in 1740; m. 1759, JOHN WILSON, of Birneyhill (b. 1719; d. 1789), and had ten sons and two daughters. Of the former the seventh son,

Lineage.

The family descends from

SIR WALTER MOLESWORTH, an eminent soldier, temp. EDWARD I, who accompanied that monarch to the Holy Land, and was constituted, in the 26th of the same reign, sheriff of the counties of Bedford and Bucks for ten years. From Sir Walter we pass to his descendant,

SIR ROGER MOLESWORTH, of Huntingdonshire, whose son,

JOHN MOLESWORTH, Esq. of Helpston, in Northamptonshire, was escheator of the co. Rutland. He d. in 1542, and was s. by his son,

The elder of these,

ANTHONY MOLESWORTH, Esq., m. Cicely, daughter and heir of Thomas Hurland, Esq. of Fotheringay, co. Northampton, and fixed his residence there; but from liberal habits and the expenses incurred by entertaining Queen ELIZABETH at his seat, Mr. Molesworth became so much involved in debt, that he disposed of the greater part of his landed possessions to discharge the incumbrances. His elder son, Guy, colonel of horse in the Royal Army during the Civil Wars.

The third son, scriptions, two of £600 each, and one of £300, for which he obtained two thousand five hundred acres of land in the baronies of Moghergallin and Lune, co. Meath. He was subsequently an eminent merchant in Dublin. In 1859, Mr. O'Halloran received an appointment in the Audit Office, South Australia, and, after passing ten years in that department, was, in 1869, appointed clerk to the Executive Council and clerk to the Court of Appeals, which offices he retained until 1871; acted also as private secretary to the Right Hon. Sir James Fergusson, Bart., governor of the colony of South Australia, from February to May, 1870; was appointed assistant-secretary and librarian of the Royal Colonial Institute, April, 1881, and in December, 1883, was promoted to the position of secretary. Soon after his retirement from the government service, in 1871, Mr. O'Halloran came to England, and found occupation in the city of London, where he filled secretarial appointments for a period extending over seven years. In 1873 he proceeded to New Zealand and travelled through both islands, visited the Cape of Good Hope in 1877, in the following year re-visited Australia, in 1882 proceeded to north-western Canada, and again visited Canada in 1884. He studied medicine and surgery at the universities of London, Paris, and Leyden. While on the continent he paid particular attention to diseases of the eye, and at Paris wrote a treatise on that organ, which was published at Limerick in 1750. Various other publications followed, and his Proposals for the Advancement of Surgery in Ireland, with a retrospective view of the ancient state of Physic amongst us, appears to have actuated the founders of the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland, of which he was elected an honorary member, 7th August, 1786, two years after the date of the charter. Among other achievements, Dr. O'Halloran was the virtual founder, in 1760, of the County Limerick Infirmary. In this department he wrote several works, and, in 1774, published his General History of Ireland from the Earliest Accounts to the Close of the 12th Century. He was the author of other works, the whole of which are enumerated in the memoir by Sir William Wilde, which was published in the Dublin Quarterly Journal of Science for August, 1848. This closed also his active military career, after an unbroken, uninterrupted service of over fifty-three years. He landed in England, 13th May, 1834, and on 15th February of the following year received the honour of knighthood, having had conferred on him some years previously the Companionship of the Order of the Bath, and was invested with the Grand Cross of that Order, 12th February, 1841; promoted to the rank of major-general, the date 1598, and an inscription states that it was "used at the coronation banquet of JAMES I and VI of Scotland by one of the Bonython family, who officiated at the banquet."

Lineage.

The Bonythons are an ancient Cornish family. Their original seat, Bonython, is "in the Lizard district in the parish of Cury, a bleak wild tract on the serpentine formation, where the sea washes the lonely shores of Gunwalloe; and in this remote district they flourished for many generations in great repute, exercising a wide influence, both social and political, throughout the length and breadth of the land" (Gentleman's Magazine, February, 1868). In the 12th century, Simon de Bonython went into Ireland as the king's special representative; and one of the Cornish historians mentions a member of the family as a man of great repute in the reign of HENRY V. During the preceding reign, the well-known estate of Carclew, near Falmouth, with an adjoining manor, passed by marriage to Richard Bonython, son of Simon Bonython of Bonython. Later on, the family had other seats, notably one in St. Columb Minor. They intermarried with the leading families of Cornwall. Sir Francis Godolphin, the famous soldier of the reign of Queen ELIZABETH, and the ancestor of the Earls of Godolphin, was the son of Katherine, daughter of Edmund Bonython. But it was during the troublous days of the Stuart dynasty that the Bonythons figured conspicuously. They held various important official positions, had seats in Parliament and were to be found as distinguished men at the Bar, as well as in the Army and the Navy. The poet Longfellow was a descendant of Captain Richard Bonython, who was one of the original proprietors of what is now known as Maine in the United States of America. Both Bonython and Carclew have passed into other hands. At the beginning of the present century, the only property which remained was in St. Columb Minor. There lived JOHN BONYTHON, Esq., the head of the family, who was the son of THOMAS BONYTHON, Esq., by Mary Roberts, his wife, and was b. in 1755. His eldest son (by Ann, daughter of John Langdon, Esq.),

The family of Wentworth, originally Wintworde, is said by genealogists to have derived its designation in Saxon times, from the lordship of Wintworde (so written in Doomsday Book) in the wapentake of Strafford, and co. of York.

This is a distinguished branch of the ancient stock of Wentworth Woodhouse, co. York, a family which has been rooted there from the earliest period. While the lands of Wentworth Woodhouse continued to be the seat of the Chiefs, and descended from sire to son, in an unbroken series, till the succession of male heirs failed with William, the second Earl of Strafford, the junior scions of the family founded in several instances houses of rank and influence, the WENTWORTHS OF WOOLLEY, OF NORTH AND SOUTH ELSALL, OF BRETON, OF WENTWORTH CASTLE, OF NETTLESTED, &c.

ROGER WENTWORTH, Esq. of Kirkby, co. York, living 1551 (second son of JOHN WENTWORTH, Esq. of North Elmsall, co. York), was father of

He was knighted by Queen ELIZABETH, and became a favourite, but the expenses in which he was involved obliged him to sell his seat and manor at Dalby. Her majesty is said to have made the following distich upon his name:—

Mr. Winter-Irving emigrated to the colony of Victoria with his friends in 1842. He was a member of the Shire Council of Waranga for nine years, two years out of which he was president, and stood for the Eastern Province against Sir Francis Murphy, but retired in favour of that gentleman on Mr. Patrick O'Brien's coming forward. He is a life member of the Royal Geographical Society, and was elected a life fellow of the Royal Colonial Institute, 1886. By royal licence, dated 24th January, 1889, he and his issue were authorised to assume the surname of IRVING in addition to and after that of WINTER, and to quarter the arms of IRVING.

Lineage.

The Irvings have long been one of the considerable clans in the south of Scotland, their fighting force being estimated in the 16th century at 500 men. The Bonshaw family were looked upon as chiefs, and so recognised in an Act of Parliament, 1587.

ROBERT DE HIREWYNE, 1226, is the first of the name traced; in 1258, ALAN YREWYNE was sent as envoy from the Scottish nobles to those of Wales; Reginold was archdeacon of Teviotdale and Glasgow, and d. before 1286; ROGER OF IRWYN was clerk of the King's wardrobe, 1327—32, and in 1329, WILLIAM IRWYN was clerk register; and in 1384, NICHOLAS DE YREWYNE was canon of Glasgow. In 1504, DAVID IRWIN was owner of Irwin and Hegsland; younger branches were seated at Woodhouse, Coveshaw, Auchinbedridge, Stank, Luce, Wyseby, Gribton, Logan, Knockhill, &c., and at Castle Irvine, co. Fermanagh.

CHRISTOPHER IRVING, of Bonshaw, Annan, co. Dumfries, is said to have been at Flodden; in 1547 he was taken prisoner by the English under Henry Wharton. Edward Irving, of Bonshaw, his son, in 1590, was at feud with William Bell, of Blackethouse, and drove him from his fortalice. At this time, Johnstone, of that ilk, is styled his "master and landlord;" he and his sons were concerned in the slaughter of Lord Maxwell, warden of the Marches; one of his sons was killed by the Kirkpatricks, circa 1554; Bonshaw Tower was besieged, but not taken, by the Earl of Marston. His son,

CHRISTOPHER IRVING, of Bonshaw, m. 1566, Margaret, daughter of John Johnstone, of that ilk, which marriage had been, in 1564, prohibited by the privy council. He had issue, William, of Bonshaw, d. s.p., and lands of Ecclefechan, held of the crown, and immediately, as already stated, resigned the seat to his uncle, Herbert.

WILLIAM IRVING, of Bonshaw, registered arms, 1673, and seems to have been "the wild Bonshaw," known as a persecutor of the Covenanters; he was stabbed to death at Lanark by a drunken follower in 1683, and buried in the old church there; his violent death had been foretold by Mr. Donald Cargill, whom he took prisoner at Covington Mill. There were intermarriages with Kirkpatrick, Douglas, of Kelhead, and Jardine, of Applegirth.

- ii. Caroline Louisa Hall, b. 17th July, 1870.

Lineage.

The name of Baillie is met with in the time of EDWARD I. Sir John Baillie is mentioned as being appointed one of the arbitrators to hear and determine upon the claims of the competitors for the Crown of Scotland in 1292, whose name and seal, seven stars with the motto "Quid clarius astris," is attached to that document. Tradition says that on a certain occasion one of the family single-handed killed a wild boar, and relieved his sovereign from danger, whereupon he was desired henceforth to bear nine stars, which all his descendants do, but some of them have the boar's head for a crest, and others the arm and scymitar, being the weapon with which the deed was done.

SIR WILLIAM BAILLIE, of Lamington, co. Lanark, by Marian, his wife, daughter of Sir John Seton, of Seton, had a numerous issue. The three eldest sons, it is said, had maimed a clergyman, who had been taken into the house as tutor, for a grievous offence which he had committed in their family, of which injury he died. The power of the Church at this time being great in Scotland, the three brothers were (continues the tradition) obliged to fly.

The eldest, who settled in Inverness, is stated to have fought at the battle of Brechin, and to have been for his services rewarded with the lands of Dunain and Torbreck, part of the castle lands of Inverness; from him springs the family of Dochfour, and its derivative branch of Redcastle and Tarradale (see Burke's Landed Gentry of Great Britain and Ireland). The second, of whom presently, settled in Ireland, and the third went to the Isle of Anglesey, and founded the family of which the Marquess of Anglesey is a descendant. The second brother was

ALEXANDER BAILLIE, who settled in Ireland, at Innishargie, co. Down, in the reign of JAMES I., about the year 1620, and d. 1687. He had issue, JOHN (Capt.), of whom presently; and Edward, who settled at Ringdufferin, co. Lineage.

This family, styled by Camden in his Britannica "the honourable and ancient house of Tyrwhitts, knts.," has been seated for several centuries in the north of England. It has had an able historian in one of its members, Mr. Robert Philip Tyrwhitt. The first person of the name of whom we have any certain account, is a SIR HERCULUS, who is said (on the authority of the Vincent and Harleian MSS.) to have been knighted and settled in Northumberland, 2nd WILLIAM I. This knight, or his son, bearing the same name, married a daughter of Sir Thomas Scargill, Knt., and was living A.D. 1109, 10th HENRY I.

Sir Hercules is stated to have thus acquired the surname of Tyrwhitt:—Severely wounded in defending a bridge, single handed, against numerous assailants, at the moment he had succeeded in forcing them to retire, he fell exhausted amongst the flags and rushes of an adjoining swamp, while the attention of his party, who, in the interim had rallied, was fortunately directed to the spot where he lay by a flock of lapwings (or as called in some counties tyrwhits) screaming and hovering above, as is customary with those birds when disturbed in the vicinity of their nests. Camden, however, in his Remains, derives the name from the place so called. The son of Sir Hercules,

SIR ROBERT TYRWHITT, was Lord of Tyrwhitt and Assancke, in Northumberland. He wedded a daughter of Sir Johu Witherington, and from this marriage descended, through a line of progenitors who allied with the Umfravilles, Lowthers, Harbottles, Ogles, Vauxes, of Gillesland, Nevilles, &c.,

ROBERT TYRWHITT, grandson of SIR OLIVER, who was grandson of SIR HERCULES. This gentleman, who is described (Harl. MSS. 810) as "Robertus Tyrwhit arm. de Ketilby, com. Linc. ac Tyrwhitt com. Northumbria," is mentioned in several of the MSS. sometimes as of Tyrwhitt and at others as of Ketilby. He m. Anne, daughter of William Wycliffe, Esq. of Wycliffe (a sister or cousin of the celebrated Johu Wycliffe, who was succeeded in the mastership of Balliol College, Oxford, by Thomas Tyrwhitt, a cadet of the family), and had two sons,

- I. Thomas, of Tyrwhitt, who m. a daughter of Alan de Boisterick, and was ancestor of the Tyrwhitts, of Northumberland.
- II. WILLIAM (SIR).

The second son,

SIR WILLIAM TYRWHITT, of Ketilby, in the county of Lincoln, is described in the Harleian MSS., No. 1550, as "Primarius Justicianus Anglie," but of Sir William's being invested with the chief-justiceship we have no other authority. He m. the daughter and heiress of John Grovale, Esq. of Harpswell, in Lincolnshire, and had (with a daughter, Cecilia, who wedded Sir William Newport, Knt., and became, after her husband's death, Abbess of Ipswich) a son and successor,

SIR ROBERT TYRWHITT, Knt., of Ketilby, who was one of the judges of the court of king's bench, in the reigns of HENRY IV, V, and VI; his patents, four in number, are dated 8th HENRY IV, 1st HENRY V, 1st HENRY VI, and may be found in Calendarium Patentium, Turri Londinensi. He is named among the "TIREURS des Petitions" to Parliament either for England or Gascony and Aquitaine, for every parliament between 9th HENRY IV and 7th HENRY VI. That the boldness of the feudal chief, however, strongly predominated in the character of this learned functionary over the meekness of the christian judge, appears too evident by the following curious extract from Cotton's records:—"13 HENRY IV, William Lord Rosse, of Famlake, complayneth against Robert Tirwhitt, one of the justices of the king's bench, for withholding from him the manor of Molton Rosse, in Lincolnshire, and laying wait for the said Lord Rosse with the number of 500 men. Sir Robert Tirwhitt before the kynge confesseth his fault and craveth pardon, and offeringe to stand to by order of two lords of the kindred of the sayd Lord Rosse as they should choose, wherunto the kynge agreed, and the sayd Lord Rosse chose the archbishop of Canterbury and the Lord Grey, chamberlaine to the kynge, who made alonge award, leaving the right of common of pasture in Wragby, in com. Linc. to the determination of Sir William Gascoigne, chief justice, and it was enjoined to the said Sir Robert Tirwhitt that at a day certaine he shod repair at Molton Rosse 2 tunnes of Gascoigne wyne, 2 fatt oxen, and 12 fatt sheepes, and offer reparation. And that he should bring together all knights, esquires, and yeomen, that were of his own, and that they shod all confess their fault and crave pardon, and further offer to the sayd Lord Rosse 500 markes in money, and that the sayde Lorde Rosse should refuse the money, graunt him pardon, and take his dinner only." The whole of the proceedings in this matter, from their commencement by the petition of William Lord Roos to the award of the arbitrators above mentioned, are recorded at great length in the rolls of Parliament, 13 HENRY IV. The details are very curious, and throw much light on the manners of that day. The award is an object of particular interest to the philological antiquary, as being almost the earliest specimen, on record, of English as a written language.

This feud between the families of Rosse (or Roos) and Tyrwhitt continued up to the time of JAMES I who, on the occasion of several lives being lost on both sides in a casual rencontre during a hunting party, caused a gallows to be erected at Molton Rosse, near Belvoir, declaring that he would hang the first like offender on it. This gallows is said to be renewed from time to time, up to the present day, whenever it falls into decay. (Gough's Camden, vol. ii, p. 388; History of Lincolnshire, 1826; and Geat's Magazine, part I, A.D. 1799.) Sir Robert had issue,

- I. WILLIAM (SIR), his heir.
- II. John, of Harpswell, who m. the daughter and heiress of Sir . . . Rolleston, Knt., and had four daughters, of whom Elizabeth espoused John Whichcote, of Whichcote, in Shropshire.
- I. Katherine, m. to Sir Johu Griffith, Knt.
- II. Maud, m. to Sir William de Montresor.

The elder son,

SIR WILLIAM TYRWITT, Knt., of Ketilby, shared in the glories of Agincourt (Nicholas's Agincourt), and received by royal grant, 8th HENRY V, the bailiwick of three towns in France; in this grant he is styled, "toutissimo dilecto militi meo Willō Tyrwhit." Sir William, who was likewise appointed in the 1st HENRY VI, seneschal of certain castles and parks in the county of Lincoln, founded the hospitals of Wranby and Glangford Brigg, in that shire, and the chantry and chapelry of Higham, in Essex; was sheriff of Yorkshire, 14th HENRY VI, and one of the knights of the body to that monarch. He was s. at his demise, 29th HENRY VI, by his son,

ADAM TYRWITT, Esq. of Ketilby, sometimes styled Sir Adam, Knt. This gentleman wedded, 1st, a daughter of John, second Lord Lumley, and 2ndly, a daughter of Sir William Newport, Knt., by Cecilia, daughter of Sir William Tyrwhitt. His son and successor,

SIR ROBERT TYRWITT, Knt., of Ketilby, received a general pardon, 34th HENRY VI, for all offences he might have committed, and died 36th HENRY VI, possessed of three manors in the county of York, and fifteen in the county of Lincoln, besides divers manors, &c, in Nottinghamshire, Essex, Sussex, and London. Sir Robert m. Jane, daughter of Sir Richard Waterton, Knt., and was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM TYRWITT, of Ketilby, who acquired by grant, from RICHARD III, the bailiwick and lordship of Scotter, and though "Armiger de personā" to that monarch, he received a general pardon from HENRY VII, and was subsequently, for his distinguished valour at the battles of Stoke and Blackheath, made successively a knight and a banneret. He espoused Anna, daughter of Sir Robert Constable, Knt. of Flamborough, and had issue,

I. ROBERT (SIR), his heir.

II. Philip (SIR), knt. banneret, living 23rd HENRY VIII.

III. Edward,
IV. Thomas,
V. Humphrey, } who all d. s.p.
VI. John,

I. Agnes, m. to Thomas, Lord Burgh, K.G.

II. Elizabeth, m. to Sir William Skipwith, Knt.

Sir William, who was thrice sheriff for Lincolnshire, was s. at his decease, in 1522, by his eldest son.

SIR ROBERT TYRWITT, Knt. of Ketilby, grantee of Cameringham and Stainfield, at which latter place he built the mansion bearing that name, long the residence of the Stainfield branch of the Tyrwhitts, its first baronets. This gentleman, vice-admiral of England, and a banneret, was seneschal of the priory of Newstead, as also of Elsham, and bailiff of Barton-on-Humber, 26th HENRY VIII.* He m. Maud, daughter of Sir Robert Tailboys, of Goulton, and had issue,

I. WILLIAM (SIR), his heir.

II. Robert (SIR), of Leighton Bromswood, in Herts, one of the ecclesiastical commissioners for Lincolnshire, 26th HENRY VIII, who received large grants in the counties of York, Lincoln, Herts, Essex, and Sussex. Sir Robert was sometime master of the horse to Queen MARY. He wedded Elizabeth,† daughter of Sir Edward Oxenbridge, second son of Sir Goddard Oxenbridge, sometime governess to the Princess Elizabeth, by whom he had an only daughter and heiress, who m. Sir Henry D'Arcy, Knt., and predeceased her father, s.p., in 1507.

III. Philip, of Barton-on-Humber, who m. the daughter and co-heir of Edward Burnaby, Esq. of Barton, and from this alliance sprang the Tyrwhitts of Stainfield, baronets (so created 29th June, 1611), which family is now extinct, but the estates have passed by will to the Drakes, of Shardeloes, and are now enjoyed by the present Thomas Tyrwhitt-Drake, Esq. of Shardeloes.

Sir Robert's eldest son and heir,

SIR WILLIAM TYRWITT, Knt., seneschal of the priory of Gaykewell, served the office of sheriff for Lincolnshire, 28th HENRY VIII, and, with his brother Robert, was one of the ecclesiastical commissioners for that county, in the 26th of the same reign. Sir William, who obtained large grants from the crown at the dissolution of the monasteries, married a daughter of Sir Robert Girlington, of Normanby, and, predeceasing his father in 1541, left issue,

I. Robert (SIR), of Ketilby, who raised and led 250 of his tenantry with the the Tyrwhitts, descended from Adam Tyrwhitt, second son of Brian Tyrwhitt, of Tyrwhitt, and in the fourth degree from Sir Hercules, became extinct, the great part of their possessions in the counties of York and Lincoln devolving on the Tyrwhitts of Ketilby. A William Tyrwhitt, of this branch, afterwards Sir William, who married a daughter of John, Lord Lumley, was at Agincourt, with three archers; he was son of Robert Tyrwhitt, of Beverley, who died 6th January, 1427, two years before his contemporary, Sir Robert Tyrwhitt, of Ketilby. It appears, too, that soon after the first Sir William Tyrwhite, described as "Primarius Justiciarius Angliæ," settled at Ketilby, that the lordship of Tyrwhitt, in Northumberland, was usurped by a prior of the Order of Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem; it shortly after came into the possession of the Ogles, who were connected with the Tyrwhitts.

† This lady was the authoress of a small volume of Morning and Evening Prayers, with divers Psalmes, Hymnes, and Meditations, Lond. 1574. This little book was so highly valued by Queen ELIZABETH, that she had a copy of it bound in solid gold.—Walt's Biographical Dictionary.

* About this period the Beverley branch of army sent against the rebel earls, 13th ELIZABETH. He m. Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Sir Thomas Oxenbridge, son and heir of Sir Goddard Oxenbridge, by Elizabeth, his wife, the sole daughter and heiress of Sir Thomas Echingham, of Echingham, and was s. at his decease, in 1581, by his eldest son,

William Tyrwhitt, Esq. of Ketilby, who wedded a daughter of Peter Freschville, Esq. of Stayvely, in Derbyshire, and was s. by his son,

Robert Tyrwhitt, Esq. of Ketilby, who m. Bridget, daughter of John Manners, fourth Earl of Rutland, and left a son and successor,

William Tyrwhitt, Esq. of Ketilby, who m. Catherine, daughter of Anthony Brown, Viscount Montague, and was s., at his decease, by his eldest surviving son,

Francis Tyrwhitt, Esq. of Ketilby, who d. in 1673, leaving an only daughter and heiress,

Catherine, who espoused Sir Henry Hunloke, Bart., of Wingerworth, and the great great grandson of this marriage was

Sir Henry Hunloke, Bart., of Wingerworth, who thus represented the eldest or Ketilby branch of the Tyrwhitts.

II. William, d. s.p.

III. Tristram, of Granby, in Lincolnshire, who was "camp maister" to the army marching northwards to quell the rebel earls of Northumberland and Westmorland. He m. a daughter of Sir William Shipwith, Knt., by Alice, his wife, daughter of Sir Lionel Dymock, Knt., but d. s.p. Sir Tristram was author of A Treatise on the Duty of a Commander-in-Chief.

II. Faith, m. 1st, Ambrose Sutton, Esq. of Barton, and 2ndly, Lawrence Meers, Esq.

The fourth son of Sir William Tyrwhitt,

MARMADUKE TYRWWHITE, Esq. of Scotter, espoused Ellen, third daughter of Lionel Reresby, Esq. of Thribourg, in the county of York, by whom he left at his demise, in 1599, a son and heir, ROBERT TWYRWWHITE, Esq. of Scotter, and afterwards of Cameringham, co. Lincoln, who was sheriff for Lincolnshire, 9th JAMES I. He m. Anne, daughter of Edward Basset.*

* "The Bassets," to follow the words of a quaint inscription in Cameringham, "were also in their generations of great authority, having been barons and allied to the crown, and companions of the Order of the Garter."

Esq. of Fledborough, in Nottinghamshire, and had (with other children, who died young),

I. MARMADUKE, his heir.

II. Robert, was for thirty-two years in the service of CHARLES I. He was eldest esquire of the horse, master of the buckhounds, and, with Sir C. Clerk, ranger of the New Forest. He followed the fortunes of that ill-fated monarch to the last, and when the momentary ascendancy of the Regicides had sullied their country with the blood of his master, he did not long survive. The broken cavalier lingered, unmolested by CROMWELL, at Hampton Court, but for two years. He d. January, 1651, and was buried in Hampton Church, where a monument is erected to his memory.

IV. Edmund, gentleman pensioner in ordinary to CHARLES I.

V. Francis, was, in his youth, cup-bearer to the Queen of Bohemia, sister to CHARLES I, and accompanying her to her husband's court, was present at most of the great battles of that period on the continent. In 1631, having the king's commission for that purpose, he raised 1,500 men for the service of Gustavus Adolphus, and in 1632, when, upon the retirement of the Marquis of Hamilton from the command of Gustavus's English and Scottish forces, his successor, the Duke of Saxe-Weimar, had reformed the 6,000 British into two regiments, Lieutenant-Colonel Francis Tyrwhitt was, by Gustavus's desire, appointed to the command of the first. In November of the same year, a few days before the battle of Lutzen, he was taken prisoner by the Imperialists, whilst on a reconnoitring party with Gustavus, and was thus debarred from sharing the honours of that fatal day. He escaped after the action. In 1642, he joined King Charles, at York, with 155 men, and in the same year was appointed to a principal command in the wars in Ireland, where he d., 1643, and was buried in Christ Church, Cork.

VI. Thomas, "divine and chaplain" to King CHARLES I.

CECIL TYRWWHITE, Esq. of Cameringham, who m. Anne Townshend, and was s. at his demise, in 1694, by his son,

ROBERT TYRWWHITE, Esq. of Cameringham. This gentleman m. Ellen, daughter of Thomas Lyster, Esq. of Coleby, and had issue,

Lineage.

This family is lineally descended from that of Campbell, of Aberuchill, BARONETS OF NOVA SCOTIA. The immediate ancestor of the family is SIR JOHN CAMPBELL, of Lawers, co. Perth (great grandson of JOHN CAMPBELL, of Lawers, youngest son of SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, first of Glenorchy, 3rd son of DUNCAN, 1st LORD CAMPBELL, the ancestor of the families of ARGYLE and BREADALBANE, see those titles in Burke's Peerage), who m. his cousin Beatrix, daughter of Sir Colin Campbell, of Glenorchy, and had three sons,

- i. Sir James Campbell, of Lawers, m. Jean, daughter of James, 1st LORD COLVILLE OF CULROSS (see Burke's Peerage). Their son, John, m. 1629, Margaret, BARONESS LOUDOUN, and was elevated to the peerage, 12th May, 1633, by the titles of BARON FARRINYEANE AND MAUCHLINE, and EARL OF LOUDOUN, to him and his male heirs for ever; but his lordship joining the opposition to the Court, the patent was, by a special order, stopped at the Chancery, and the title superseded until 1641, when it was allowed with the original precedence. In this year he was appointed high chancellor of Scotland, and first commissioner of the Treasury; and after the decapitation of the king, when the Parliament re-assembled in 1648, Lord Loudoun was chosen president of the Session, which ordered the Proclamation of CHARLES II. Upon his majesty's subsequent defeat at Worcester, the earl was not only deprived of his office, but forced to conceal himself in the Highlands, while an act of attainder and forfeiture passed against him. His lordship and his son, Lord Mauchline, had the honour, afterwards, of being specially excepted from the indemnity granted by the usurper to the people of Scotland. He d. 15th March, 1662, and was s. by his only son James, 2nd Earl of Loudoun (see that title in Burke's Peerage), who is represented as heir general by the Earl of Loudoun and as heir male by Sir James Campbell, of Aberuchill, Bart.

- ii. COLIN CAMPBELL, of Aberuchill.

- iii. Archibald Campbell, prior of Strathfillan.

In 1594 Sir John acquired Aberuchill, and other lands, from the family of Moray, of Abercairny, and the following year resigned them in favour of his second son, COLIN CAMPBELL, of Aberuchill, who had a crown charter of confirmation in that estate, 12th July, 1596, and acquired Craiginch, Leonards, and other lands. In 1612, Archibald, Earl of Argyll, justice general of Scotland, granted a commission to "my lovitt Colin Campbell, of Aberuchill," to apprehend or pursue to the death all persons of "that most unhappie and barbarous raice of the name of M'Gregor," his majesty's rebels. An Act of Parliament, 1617, against the clan Gregor, mentions depredations committed by them on the estate of Aberuchill. Colin Campbell had issue by his wife, Jean, daughter of Harie Drummond, of Riccarton,

- i. JAMES (SIR).

- II. John, of Foordie, a member of the Committee of War, 1647, d. in or before 1683, leaving issue, Mary, m. Henry Stewart, advocate, 4th son of Sir William Stewart, of Grandtully; from this marriage descends Sir Archibald Douglas Stewart, Bart., of Grandtully, co. SIR JAMES CAMPBELL, of Aberuchill, a firm adherent of the royal cause, who was created a baronet of Nova Scotia by Royal Patent dated 13th December, 1627 (see Douglas's Baronage of Scotland). He m. Ann, daughter of Patrick Hepburn, of Woodling, and Janet Napier, his wife, and dying in November, 1640, was s. by his son,

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, 2nd baronet of Aberuchill, then a minor, who became a lawyer and politician of note, and held the various high appointments of sheriff depute of Argyllshire 1668; senator of the College of Justice under the title of Lord Aberuchill 1689; lord of justiciary and privy councillor 1690; and was also of the Privy Council to Queen ANNE 1703. He represented the co. of Perth in Parliament from 1690 to 1702. In 1669 Sir Colin Campbell acquired the barony of Kilbride, with its fine old castle near Dunblane, Perthshire, the seat of the Earls of Menteith, still the property of his representative. A crown charter a few months later erected all his lands into one free barony, holding direct of the king, to be called Aberuchill, and made Inneruchill into a burgh of barony. Lord Aberuchill suffered losses amounting to 17,201*l.* at the hands of the Scots from the Highland Army, under Lord Dundee, and had an Act of Parliament granting him compensation, which he appears never to have received. ALISON, WILLIAM, Esq. of Cannonbar station, Nyngan, New South Wales, Australia, member of the Legislative Assembly, b. 7th April, 1855; m. 29th June, 1887, Ellen Maud, daughter of James Milson, Esq. of Elamang, Sydney, New South Wales.

Lineage.

The family of Alison from very early times resided in the parish of Avondale, Lanarkshire. The Gaelic name is McAlister, and was changed into Alison when the clan was driven from Loupe, Argyllshire, by the followers of King ROBERT THE BRUCE. Alexander McAlister, a descendant of Gomerled, the Lord of the Isles, took the side of Baliol, and, with his brother John, was attacked by King ROBERT THE BRUCE in his principal stronghold called Castle Sweyn, in Knapdale. Compelled to flee he was taken prisoner on his way to Ayrshire and was confined in Dundonald Castle, where he d. in 1309. His brother John escaped to the abode of Sir Winter de Hamilton, in Hamilton, the ancestor of the dukes of that name, who also at first took the side of Baliol. To preserve him and his followers from the wrath of Bruce, Sir Winter de Hamilton placed them in Arondale. There they have continued for 600 years, and a great many of the small estates in that neighbourhood are still owned by their descendants. Their original estate of Loupe was confiscated and given to the youngest brother, who remained faithful to Bruce, and that branch of the clan retained the ancient name of McAlister to the present century and are frequently mentioned in Scotch history. The Alison family are also alluded to several times in the time of the Covenanters. One Archibald Alison, of Windyedge, a farm belonging to the ancient estate of Cairnduff, fought at the battle of Drumclog against Claverhouse, afterwards Viscount Dundee, and also at the battle of Bothwell Bridge; but at the skirmish at Ayrsmoss, he was taken prisoner and suffered martyrdom at the Grassmarket of Edinburgh in 1679. His dying testimony is recorded in the well-known volume called The Cloud of Witnesses. The sword of Michael, his brother, is still in the hands of the family, a sword which he wielded at the battles of Drumclog and Bothwell Bridge, and at the siege of Londonderry. His estate is still in the possession of a cousin of the present William Alison, Esq.

JAMES ALISON, Esq. of Windyedge, co. Ayr, m. 6th April, 1813, Jeannie, daughter of William Jamieson, Esq. of Middlecroft, co. Perth (she d. 4th December, 1874), and d. 1st February, 1861. His eldest son,

- II. Annie Catherine, b. 25th September, 1867.

Lineage.

The Macarthurs were originally the chiefs of the clan Campbell.

The first appearance of the Campbells is in the reign of ALEXANDER II of Scotland. The most ancient MS. genealogies attest their Gaelic origin. When first mentioned we find them divided into two great families, afterwards distinguished by the patronymics of Macarthur and MacCailinmore. Till the reign of ROBERT BRUCE the Campbells did not possess a heritable right to any property in Argyllshire. The situation of the Macarthur branch at this time was very different, for we find them in possession of a very extensive territory in the earldom of Garmoran, the original seat of the clan. It is, therefore, impossible to doubt that Macarthur was at this time the head of the clan. This position he appears to have maintained until the reign of JAMES I of Scotland. In 1487, when this monarch summoned his parliament at Inverness for the purpose of entrapping the highland chiefs, John Macarthur was one of those who fell into the snare and seems to have been amongst the few specially devoted to destruction. He was beheaded along with Alexander the Lord of Garmoran, and his whole property forfeited with the exception of "Strachur," and some lands in Perthshire, which remained to his descendants. His position at the head of the clan is sufficiently pointed out by the historian, Bower, who calls him "Princeps Magnum apud suos, et dux Mille Nominum."

Macarthur of Strachur was chief of the clan Campbell previous to 1427, since which date the oldest cadet, MacCailinmore of Campbell of Loch Arve, now Duke of Argyll, has filled that position, not by right of descent, but by feudal and territorial power.

JOHN MACARTHUR, Esq. of Strachur, Loch Arve, N.B., was slain at Culloden. He had seven sons (all of whom fought at Culloden Moor, A.D. 1746):—I. Charles, who mortgaged his estate to the MacCailinmore or Argyll family. He had issue, two sons,

I. Charles, in whose time the Strachur mortgage fell due and was foreclosed; and, 2. Duncan, who entered the royal navy in 1794 as an assistant surgeon. He eventually rose to the rank of a "physician of the fleet," and it was he who attended the great Duke of Wellington at his death; II. a son, who, after Culloden, went to Perthshire. His grandson was "Macarthur of Little Mill," Perthshire; III. a son, whose grandson was "Macarthur of Hinton," a purser in the royal navy. He wrote a book of considerable merit on Naval Courts Martial; IV. ALEXANDER, of whom presently; V. a son, also went to Perthshire, after Culloden. His grandson was a lieutenant R.N.; VI. a son, supposed to have been killed at Culloden; and VII. a son, supposed to have gone out to the American colonies. The fourth son, ALEXANDER MACARTHUR, Esq., fled from Scotland after the battle of Culloden, and appears to have taken refuge in the West Indies, whence, after a time, he returned and settled at Devonport, Devonshire, England. He m. a Scotch lady, and by her had two sons,

I. JAMES, of whom presently.

II. John, of Camden Park, Menangle, Camden co., and of Elizabeth Farm, Parramatta, Cumberland co., both New South Wales, Australia; b. in 1767, at Plymouth, co. Devon; and entered the army in 1782, and at the close of the war in 1783 (his regiment having been reduced, and he being put on half-pay) entered upon a course of study to complete his education. After the lapse of some time he purchased a captain's commission in the 102nd Regiment, destined for New South Wales; embarked for Sydney with his young wife and infant son, afterwards General Sir Edward Macarthur, and arrived in Sydney in June, 1790. As early as 1791 he began to turn his attention to agriculture; in common with the other officers of the regiment, he was offered 100 acres of land near Parramatta, with a promise that whoever first brought his land into cultivation should have an additional quantity. Captain Macarthur was the one to claim this privilege, and he it was who, in 1795, first broke Australian soil with a plough, all previous cultivation having been carried on in true primitive style, with the hoe. On the land thus acquired he established a homestead, to which he gave the name of "Elizabeth Farm." In 1794, he purchased from a brother officer sixty Bengal sheep, which had been imported into the colony, and from that time devoted himself to the production of fine wool in Australia. In 1796 he obtained from the Cape some pure Spanish merino sheep, in all five ewes and three rams, and with this new and valuable blood he commenced to crop his hairy sheep; and whilst others were devoting themselves to the production of carcasses, he steadily persevered in his original object—the production of fine wool. In 1801 he took the first samples of merino wool to England, and having submitted them to the inspection of a committee of manufacturers, they reported that the merino wool was equal to any Spanish wool, and the crossbred of considerable value. Supported by the manufacturers, who, in the unsettled state of European affairs, were fully alive to the advantage of obtaining a national source of supply for their raw material, and encouraged by Lord Camden, the Secretary of State, Captain Macarthur decided on retiring from the army and devoting himself to the production of fine wool, on condition that he should receive a grant of not less than 5,000 acres of land in any locality he might point out. He obtained some sheep from the royal flock of Spanish merinos at Kew, and returning to the colony in 1805, in the ship "Argo," which he had purchased, he succeeded in landing five rams and one ewe. The land which was granted to him by Lord Camden, then known as "The Cowpastures," became the foundation of the Camden Park Estate, where the descendants of her grandfather's flock are preserved with great care by the present owner. After taking a leading part in the deposition of Governor Bligh (a most accurate account of which is to be found in Rusden's History of Australia, vol. i), Captain Macarthur was, with several officers of the New South Wales corps, sent to England under arrest, and after an absence of seven years, being honourably acquitted, he returned to Australia in 1817, provided by the Government with sufficient accommodation for himself and his sons, James and William. John Macarthur was called the "Father of the Colony." In 1825 he was appointed member of the first Legislative Council of New South Wales. The expectations that he had formed of the wool trade of the colony were crowned with complete success, and the wines from the vineyard which he formed at Camden have taken the first rank at international exhibitions. He m., 1788, Elizabeth, daughter of R. Veal, Esq. of Judgeworthy, Bridge Rule, Devonshire, England, and d. at Camden Park, 10th April, 1834, having had issue by her (who d. in February, 1850),

1. Edward (Sir), K.C.B., lieutenant-general in the army, b. at Bath, England, 1789; entered the army 1808, and the following year was promoted to the rank of lieutenant, in 1820 to that of captain, and in 1826 to that of major. He served throughout the Peninsular War; was present at the battles of Corunna, Vittoria, the Pyrenees, Nive, Nivelles, Orthes, and Toulouse, and was with the 39th Regiment in Sicily, Canada, Spain, and France. After his return to England he was, for several years, secretary to the lord chamberlain; was appointed to the charge of a district in Ireland during the troubles of 1837; made lieutenant-colonel 1841; subsequently went to New South Wales as deputy adjutant-general; made colonel 1854; in 1855, appointed commander-in-chief of H.M. forces in Australia; promoted to the rank of lieutenant-general, 1856; and from 1st January to 31st December, 1856, was lieutenant-governor of Victoria. He was created a K.C.B. in 1862, and the same year was appointed colonel of the 100th Foot. He m. in 1862, Sarah, third daughter of Lieutenant-colonel Neill, and sister of the gallant Brigadier-general Neill, who fell at Lucknow; and d. s.p. in London 4th January, 1872, aged 82 years.
2. John, of London, barrister-at-law, b. 1794; educated at King's College, Cambridge, was nominated to be chief justice of New South Wales, when death overtook him, 1831. He was unn.
3. James, of Camden Park, New South Wales, b. at Parramatta, 1798; educated by a French refugee (Huon de Kerillan) until 1809, when he and his brother William accompanied their father to England, and were sent to Grove Hall Academy, Bow, under the tuition of Dr. Lindsay. After having travelled (in 1815) through several continental countries, he returned to New South Wales in 1817, in the "Lord Eldon," and assisted his father in the management of the Camden Estate, again visited England in 1828, returning in 1830, and went to England for the third time in 1836, taking petitions to the King and Parliament on transportation, immigration, and representative institutions. He then published New South Wales, its Present State and Future Prospects. He returned to Sydney in 1839, when he became a member of the Legislative Council, was rejected by the electors of Cumberland, 1843; elected for Camden, 1848, and again under the new constitution in 1851, continuing to serve until 1856; in 1859 was returned for West Camden, but declined re-election; again left for England in 1860, and returned to the colony in 1864. In England he was a member of the International Statistical Congress, and one of the commissioners of the Exhibition of 1862. When offered the honour of knighthood, in recognition of his public services, he respectfully declined the proffered distinction. Mr. James Macarthur m. 14th June, 1838, Emily, second daughter of Henry Stone, Esq. of Lombard-street, London, banker, and d. 21st April, 1867, having had by her (who d. 27th November, 1880) an only daughter,

Co.'s civil service; went to Sydney, 1838, and thence to England, 1841; educated at schools in Surrey and Nottinghamshire, and entered the navy in May, 1847, on board H.M.S. "Howe," 120 guns, Captain Sir James Stirling, first governor of Western Australia; was for three years on service in the Channel and Mediterranean squadrons, and during that period took the Queen Dowager Adelaide to Madeira; was sent to the West Coast of Africa in 1850, and the following year was present at the attacks on Lagos, in the Bight of Biafra, —a great stronghold of the slave trade—now an English colony. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant for gallant conduct displayed by him in a severe storm on his way to England in H.M. paddle-steamer "Volcano;" sailed for the Baltic in March, 1854, and the following year was present at the bombardment of Sweaborg. He was next employed on the Australian station in H.M.S. "Herald," surveying the East Australian coast, returning to England, 1861; was made commander, 1863, and subsequently went to Sydney on sick leave; was placed on the retired list, April, 1871, and promoted to the rank of post-captain. He represented Camden in the New South Wales parliament for many years, having been first returned in January, 1870. Captain Onslow was the eldest son of Arthur Pooley Onslow, Esq. of Send Grove, Ripley, co. Surrey, England (see ON SLOW, BART., in Burke's Peerage), by Rosa Roberta, his wife, daughter of Alexander MacLeay, Esq., F.R.S., F.L.S., for many years colonial secretary of New South Wales, and elected speaker of the first Legislative Council in Australia; and d. at Camden Park, 31st January, 1882, leaving issue, 1. II. Milo, d. in Ireland.

III. William, of Brisingham, co. Norfolk, witness to a charter A.D. 1100, ancestor of the VERDONS of Norfolk, Suffolk, and Northampton. The representative of the Verdons of Brisingham,

JOHN DE VERDUN, a minor at his father's decease, m. Margaret, daughter and heir of Simon Fitz de Lisle, of Brixworth, co. Northampton, and d. circa 1300, having had issue,

1. John, d. circa 1302.

2. Thomas, Lord of Brisingham, Brixworth, &c., d. 9th EDWARD II, leaving a son,

John (Sir), Knt., of Marthesham, co. Suffolk (having removed from Brisingham), who, dying 1346, left by Maud, his wife, three sons,

1. Thomas (Sir), on whom Brixworth was settled in 1329;

he d. v.p., leaving by his wife, Alice, an only son, Thomas, who d. s.p., before 25th EDWARD III.

2. John (Sir), was summoned to parliament as a baron, from 27th January, 1332, to 22nd January, 1336, and again 25th February, 1342. He m. twice: by Maud, his first wife, he had a son, Edmund, who d. s.p., v.p., and a daughter, Margaret, m. first to Hugh or Henry Bradshaw; and secondly, to Sir John Pilkington; and by Isabel, his second wife, daughter of Sir John Vise de Lore, he had a daughter, Isabel, m. to Sir Imbert Noon, Knt., amongst whose heirs-general this barony of Verdon is now in abeyance.

3. Christopher (Sir).

1. Susan, wife of Sir Nicholas Seyton.

The eldest son,

NORMAN DE VERDON, living 1140, m. Lasceline, daughter of Geoffrey de Clinton, lord chamberlain and treasurer to King HENRY I, and had issue,

I. BERTRAM, his heir.

II. Nicholas, abbot of Burton.

III. Robert, m. Joan, daughter and co-heir of Henry de Bourton, of . . .

Warwickshire, and was ancestor of the VERDONS of Draycot, co. Warwick, and of Ibstock, co. Leicester.

IV. Simon.

- I. Alicia, m. to Ivo de Pantulf, of Wem, co. Salop.

BERTRAM DE VERDON, the eldest son, was sheriff of Leicestershire from the 16th to the 30th of King HENRY II's, reign inclusive. He subsequently attended RICHARD I to the Holy Land, and was at the siege of Acon, which place, upon its surrender, was committed to his custody. This Bertram founded the abbey of Croxden, co. Stafford, anno 1176, and was otherwise a liberal benefactor to the Church. He m. first, Maud, daughter of Robert de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, by whom he had no issue; and secondly, Roesia, but of what family is unknown. He d. at Joppa, in 1192, having had issue,

- I. William d. s.p., 1199.

- II. THOMAS, of whom presently.

- III. Bertram.

- IV. Robert.

- V. NICHOLAS, successor to his brother.

- VI. Walter, constable of Bruges Castle, in Valois, and had a son, Ralf de Verdon.

- I. Leceline, m. to Hugh de Lacy.

The second son and heir,

THOMAS DE VERDON, m. Eustachia, daughter of Gilbert Bassett, and by her (who m. secondly, Richard Camville) he had no issue. He d. in Ireland, anno 1199, s.p., when he was s. by his brother,

NICHOLAS DE VERDON, who, in the 6th JOHN, paid to the king 100*l.*, as also a courser and palfrey, for livery of those lands in Ireland, whereof his father died possessed. But in 12 years afterwards he took part with the rebellious barons, whereupon all his lands were seized by special precepts from the crown to the sheriffs of Warwick, Leicester, Stafford, Lincoln, Bucks, and Oxford, and placed in the custody of William de Cantilupe, during the king's pleasure. On his submission, however, to King HENRY III, those lands were restored to him in the first year of that monarch, and he appears afterwards to have enjoyed the favour of the king. He died in 1231, leaving (by Joan, his wife) an only daughter and heiress,

ROESIA DE VERDON, who m. THEOBALD LE BOTILLER, of the noble family of Butler, of Ireland, but being so great an heiress, retained her maiden name after marriage, which her husband adopted. At the time of her father's decease, she appears to have been a widow. This lady, who founded the abbey of Grace Dieu, for Cistercian monks, at Beldon, in Leicestershire, d. in 1248, leaving issue,

JOHN, her heir.

Humphrey, rector of Alveton, d. at Paris, 1285.

Nicholas, who had the manor of Clumore, in Ireland, d. s.p.

THEOBALD DE VERDON, ancestor of the VERDONS, Lords of Darlaston and Biddulph, co. Stafford.

Maud, m. to John Fitz-Alan, Earl of Arundel.

Roesia was s. by her eldest son,

JOHN DE VERDON (alias Le Botiller). This great feudal lord, being one of the barons marchers, had orders, in the 44th HENRY III, on the incursions of the Welsh, to keep his residence upon the borders. After which he was one of the barons who adhered to the king, in the conflict between the crown and the nobles; and upon the triumph of the royal cause at Evesham, he was commissioned to raise forces in Worcestershire, for the purpose of attacking the only remaining hold of the barons, at Kenilworth. But these troubles being at length ended, John de Verdon was signed with the cross, and accompanied Prince Edward to the Holy Land. John de Verdon m. first, Margerie, daughter of Gilbert de Lacie, and co-heir to her grandfather, Walter de Lacie, Lord Palatine of Meath, in Ireland, by which alliance the castle of Weobley, co. Hereford, came into the Verdon family; and secondly, Alianore, whose surname is unknown. At his death, being slain in Ireland, 1278, he left issue,

- I. Nicholas (Sir), of Ewyas Lacie, d. v.p. and s.p., 1271.

- II. John, Lord of Weobley, d. s.p., circa 1295.

- III. THEOBALD, of whom presently.

- IV. Thomas, of Staffordshire; returned as a man-at-arms, 17th EDWARD II; ancestor, it is believed, of Sir Thomas de Verdon, Knt., of Denston, co. Stafford, and of his brother, Sir John de Verdon, sheriff of Staffordshire, 34th EDWARD III, who d. s.p., leaving his sister, Joan, wife of John de Whitmore, Lord of Whitmore, his heir. This Joan left two daughters and co-heirs, viz., Joan, m. to Henry Clerk, of Ruyton, co. Salop; and Elizabeth, m. to James de Boghay, Lord of Whitmore. (See Burke's Landed Gentry, MAINWARING OF WHITMORE.)

- I. Agnes, d. 1305.

The third son,

THEOBALD DE VERDON, lord of the moiety of Meath, in Ireland, had, in the 3rd EDWARD I, on doing homage, livery of his lands, paying 100*l.* for his relief. At this period he held the office of Constable of Ireland. For some years subsequently this eminent person seems to have enjoyed the favour of the crown, and to have received several immunities; but in the 19th of EDWARD's reign we find him arraigned for treason, and divers other misdemeanours, before the king and council, at Bergavenny, and condemned to imprisonment and confiscation; the king, however, taking into consideration the good services of his ancestors, and his own submission, freed him for a fine of 500 marks; and he was soon after summoned to parliament as BARON VERDON. In the 29th of the same reign (EDWARD I), his lordship was one of the barons in the parliament of Lincoln, who, by a public instrument, under their seals, sent to Pope BONIFACE VIII, asserted the right of King EDWARD, as superior lord of the whole realm of Scotland. Lord Verdon having had summons to parliament to 3rd November, 1306, d. in 1309. By Margery, or Elenor, his wife, he had issue,

- i. John (Sir), d. v.p. and s.p., 1297.
- ii. THEOBALD, of whom presently.

The younger son,

SIR THEOBALD DE VERDON, second baron, had summons to parliament in the lifetime of his father, as "Theobald de Verdon, junior," from 29th December, 1299, to 22nd February, 1307, and afterwards, without the word "junior," from 4th March, 1309, to 24th October, 1314. This nobleman, in the 6th EDWARD II, was constituted justice of Ireland, having likewise the lieutenancy of that realm, and the fee of 500*l.* per annum, then granted to him. His lordship m. first, Maud, daughter of Edmund, Lord Mortimer, of Wigmore, by whom, who d. at Alveton Castle, 1315, he had issue,

- i. John, d. s.p.
- ii. William, d. s.p.
- i. Joan, m. first, William de Montagu, and secondly, Thomas de Furnival, second Lord Furnival, and d. in 1334. Joan had the castle of Alveton as co-heiress of her father.
- ii. Elizabeth, m. to Bartholomew, Lord de Burghersh. Elizabeth had the castle of Ewyas Lacie as her share.
- iii. Margaret, m. first, Marcus Hussee; secondly, William le Blount; and thirdly, Sir John Crophull. Margaret had the castle of Weobley, as third co-heiress. By Sir John Crophull she had a son,

Thomas Crophull, whose daughter and heiress,
Agnes, m. Sir Walter Devereux, knight.

He m. secondly, Elizabeth, widow of John de Burgh, Earl of Ulster, and daughter, and eventually co-heir, of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Gloucester, by Jane Plantagenet, daughter of King EDWARD I, by whom (who m. thirdly, Sir Roger d'Amorie) he had an only daughter,

- iv. Isabel, who had the castle of Ludlow, as fourth co-heiress, m. to Henry Ferrers, Lord Ferrers, of Groby, which Henry d. 17th EDWARD III, leaving by the said Isabel, William, Lord Ferrers.
Philippa, m. to Guy de Beauchamp.
Elizabeth, m. to . . . de Assells.

Theobald, Lord Verdon, d. at Alveton Castle, and was buried at Croxden, aged circa 34 years, in 1316, when the barony of Verdon fell into abeyance amongst his daughters, and so continues with their representatives. A descendant of this family,

REV. EDWARD VERDON, B.A., incumbent of St. Anne's, Tottington, co. Lancaster, and of Dublin (whose father claimed the title of baron, formerly borne by the Earls of Shrewsbury), m. Jane Frances, daughter of Dr. George Hobson, of London, and was father of the present Hon. SIR GEORGE FREDERIC VERDON.

Lineage

That this family resided in Somerset, and had landed property in that county for many generations, appears from a great number of old parchment deeds still in the possession of the family. The oldest which has at present been found is of the reign of HENRY VIII, and relates to the estate of East Brent, which has only lately been sold. Referring to the same estate of East Brent, there are several deeds in the succeeding reigns, and a marriage settlement of the time of CHARLES II, in which East Brent, Shipham, and Newbay are mentioned as family property.

JOHN TRIPP, Esq. of Shipham and Huntspill, Somerset, living in the reigns of WILLIAM III and MARY II, and Queen ANNE, m. twice. From his second marriage are derived the Tripps of Bristol, one of whom went to Holland, and amassed great wealth at Amsterdam, where, in his honour, a street is still called Tripp-street. His son was created in Holland Baron Tripp by the Prince of Orange, and one of his descendants commanded with great credit the Nassau Brigade at Waterloo (see Waterloo Despatch, 19th June, 1818: "General Kruse of the Nassau Service likewise conducted himself much to my satisfaction; as did General Tripp, commanding the heavy brigade of cavalry"). Middlesex; m. Catharine, third daughter and co-heir of Rice Griffith, of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields, and d. at Hammersmith, co. Family of Erskine.

This is a branch of the ancient family of the Erskines, Earls of Mar, and is thus descended from ROBERT BRUCE, King of Scotland.

SIR THOMAS ERSKINE, of that ilk, granted Dun, which had been some time in the possession of the family, to his son by his 2nd wife, Jean Barclay, viz.,

SIR JOHN ERSKINE, of Dun, 1393.

ALEXANDER ERSKINE, of Dun, was father of

JOHN ERSKINE, of Dun, who had a charter, 1449; m. Marjory, daughter of Graham, of Fintry, and d. 1508, leaving, I. JOHN, his heir; II. Thomas, fell at Flodden; and III. Alexander. The eldest son,

JOHN ERSKINE, of Dun, m. Catherine, daughter of William Monypenny, of Pitmillie, and had issue,

The Edingtons migrated to Scotland during the early half of the 12th century. Their lands of Edington were for several centuries held of Coldingham Priory. Adamus de Edington and his son Adam successively attested charters granted by Walthur and Patrick, Earls of Dunbar, between 1166 and 1289. Robert de Edington is among the witnesses to the charters of Roger, Bishop of St. Andrews, in 1193. On 27th July, 1479, Jacobus de Edington, with others, was summoned to appear before the Parliament to answer to the charge of treason in having held out the castle of Dunbar against the King, and for having cruelly put to death some of his subjects.

In the time of JAMES II, the possessions of the family of Edington, in Berwickshire, were lost, in consequence of the family's adherence to the Presbyterian form of worship, the great great grandfather of the present representative being, according to tradition, the last proprietor. This family originally came from Stockton Manor, Cheshire, England. Dr. Stockton is descended from RICHARD STOCKTON, Esq., who emigrated from England to America prior to the year 1656. He for a short time settled on Long Island, New York, and then removed to Princeton, New Jersey, where he became the grantee of large tracts of land.

RICHARD WILLIAM STOCKTON, Esq., was b. at Princeton, New Jersey, in 1733. He served, with the rank of major, throughout the American Revolutionary War on the side of the Crown, and was a cousin of the Richard William Stockton who signed the Declaration of Independence. He and his son, Andrew Hunter Stockton, Esq., were among the loyalists who went to the province of New Brunswick at the close of the revolution in 1783, and were among the original grantees of the city of St. John, New Brunswick, Canada, then known as Parrtown. All their estates in New Jersey were forfeited. They finally settled in King's co., N.B., and became grantees of large tracts of land in that county. The branch of the family which adhered to the cause of the colonies is still very prominent in New Jersey, John P. Stockton, Esq., being at present attorney-general. Richard William Stockton d. at Sussex, King's co. New Brunswick, Canada, 8th May, 1801, leaving issue, ANDREW HUNTER STOCKTON, Esq., b. at Princeton, New Jersey, 3rd January, 1760, served on the side of the Crown during the American Revolutionary War, with the rank of lieutenant, and d. at Sussex, King's co., N.B., May, 1821, leaving issue,

CHARLES WILLIAM STOCKTON, Esq., b. in King's co., N.B., 4th April, 1787. He was a judge of the court of common pleas, a justice of the peace for King's co., N.B., and was also a large landowner. He d. July, 1869, having had issue,

Lineage.

This is supposed to be a cadet line of the family of the chief of Mackinnon.

The Mackinnons descend from Fingon, youngest son of ALPIN, King of Scotland; the name Macfingon became subsequently Macfinden, and then Mackinnon.

Little can be accurately learned as to the early history of the Mackinnons; but there is one event of importance which is recorded by clear testimony. On the decease of John of the Isles, in the fourteenth century, Mackinnon excited his second son, John Mor, to rebel against his eldest brother, and his faction was joined by the Macleans and the Macleods. But Donald, the elder brother, was supported by so large a majority of the tribe, that he drove John Mor and his party out of the Isles, and pursued them to Ireland. Eventually, John Mor appealed to his brother's mercy, and was pardoned; but Mackinnon, as the instigator of the rebellion, was seized and put to death.

On the forfeiture of the last Lord of the Isles, and in the disturbances which continued during the following century, the name of Sir Lauchlan Mackinnon occurs very frequently, and he appears to have been a man of consideration.

Lineage.

The BLAXLANDS are of great antiquity, and were in possession of the Isle of Thanet before the Norman Conquest. It was taken from them by William the Conqueror, and divided among several of the families of his followers. In one or more of the oldest churches in the Isle of Thanet, such as Minster Church, may be seen down the aisles, numerous marble slabs, with inscriptions and effigies of the Blaxlands. There are three manors in Kent which still retain the name of Blaxland.

JOHN BLAXLAND or DE BLOCKISLAND, of Blaxland Towers, the ancestor of this family, is mentioned in the oldest chronicles, as far back as when St. Augustine came to England. He was present at the christening of King ÆTHELBERT and Queen BERTHA, the first Christian king and queen of England, on Whit-Sunday, 2nd June, 597, and in their presence presented St. Augustine with a grant of land for the future abbey of St. Augustine, the first missionary home in Britain. Part of the ruins of the abbey still remain, and on the site stands the present Abbey of St.

Augustine. With King RICHARD I at the Crusades the name of REGINALD DE BLOCK-ISLAND is among those who received honours and rewards from the king. One JOHN BLAXLAND was captain of the guard of Queen ELIZABETH. He m. Elizabeth, daughter of John Lowen, the poet, who was with Beaumont and Fletcher (of the intellectual coterie of Shakspeare) at the celebrated White Hart.

In 1730 the coat of arms was granted to JOHN BLAXLAND, of the parish of St. Andrew's, Holborn, co. Middlesex, who was the son of JOHN BLAXLAND, of Luddenham Court, co. Kent, and grandson of JOHN BLAXLAND, of Allen Court, in the parish of Minster, in the Isle of Thanet, co. Kent, by Frances, his wife, one of the daughters and co-heirs of Geoffry Sandwell, of Monckton, in the Isle of Thanet, a descendant of John de Sandale, who was admitted canon of York, 6th May, 1314, chancellor of England, 1315, and elected bishop of Winchester, August, 1316, continuing in that see till his death, at his seat in Southwark, 2nd November, 1319, and buried in the church of St. Mary Overy. One JOHN BLAXLAND, supposed to be a descendant of John Blaxland, of Holborn, m. the daughter of John Oxley Parker (of the family of Matthew Parker, archbishop of Canterbury in the time of Queen ELIZABETH), and had four sons,

I. JOHN (HON.).

Kent, 1771, was sent to New South Wales, by his eldest brother John, in 1804, and settled on an estate called the Brush, not far from the banks of the Parramatta River. In 1813, he, together with W. C. Wentworth and Lieutenant Lawson, discovered the famous pass in the Blue Mountains, a task which had several times previously been unsuccessfully attempted, and which heroic work nearly cost them their lives. Through this act the colony of New South Wales was opened out to the extent that it now is, and abundance of pasture for the flocks and herds discovered at a time when it was about to be abandoned on account of the prevailing drought. All three were rewarded with grants of land. It was Gregory Blaxland who planted the first vineyard in the colony with vines from the Cape, and he made the first wine, for which he gained the first gold medal, and the silver medal. He also first brought the buffalo grass from the Cape, which has since proved so beneficial. On his arrival, the severe treatment with which he met at the hands of Governor Bligh caused him to return to England, and on representing to the Government the measures which had been directed against him, he was to a certain extent compensated. Lineage.

The Scottish family of Stenhouse is held to be identical with that of Stonhouse, of Radley, in Kent, and with that of Stannus, of Carlingford and Portarlinton, in Ireland. The Stenhouses, of Comley Park, near Dunfermline, Scotland, descend directly from Stenhouse, of Carbolzie, in Scotland (see Burke's Landed Gentry, STANNUS OF CARLINGFORD).

In the American War of Independence, at least two scions of the stock suffered in the Royal cause—the one being Thomas Stannus, then M.P. for Portarlinton, who was severely wounded while serving with the 22nd Regiment, and the other, Alexander Stenhouse, Esq., M.D., whose American estates were confiscated by the Republic at the close of the war. This Dr. Alexander Stenhouse was cousin-german to the present Mr. A. M. Stenhouse's grandfather. The British government rewarded his fidelity with a life pension.

The deceased members of the Comley Park Stenhouses, are all, with one or two exceptions, interred under the walls of the Old Abbey Church of Dunfermline, within a few feet of the tomb of King ROBERT BRUCE, whose remains lie under the floor of the church.

Lineage.

This family of Wright came from the county of Chester, England.

Mr. S. E. L. Wright is a lineal descendant of JOHN EVELYN, Esq. of Wotton, co. Surrey, author of Sylea, Diary, &c., &c., and great great grandson of the gallant CAPTAIN FORTUNATUS WRIGHT, R.N., some of whose heroic deeds are related in Kingston's Popular History of the British Navy, in Hume and Smollett's History of England, in a small volume by J. N. Langton, and in Fraser's Magazine for October, 1881. Captain Wright's daughter Philippa m. CHARLES EVELYN, Esq., and their son, Sir Hugh Evelyn, who d. in 1848, was the last baronet in that family. Sir Hugh's sister, SUSANNA PRIDEAUX, m. at St. James's Church, Westminster, co. Middlesex, 21st February, 1878, JOHN ELWORTHY FORTUNATUS WRIGHT, lieutenant R.N., and had issue, four daughters and two sons, one of whom,

JOHN FAITHFUL FORTESCUE WRIGHT, lieutenant R.M., was b. 31st July, 1786; m. 3rd February, 1822, Louisa Felicia (who was b. 27th October, 1799, and d. 1st February, 1875), daughter of John Liardet, Esq., a major in the army (who d. of fever while serving at Gibraltar), by Perpetue Catherine de Paul de Lamanon d'Albe, his wife (daughter of the Duc de Lamanon d'Albe, whose estates, at the time of the Revolution in France, were at Provance, and whose pedigree could be traced from the foundation of Rome. The name in Italian and Spanish is Alva, and Albe in French, as it now stands); and brother of Captain Francis Liardet, R.N., who was b. at Chelsea, co. Middlesex, 14th June, 1798. Lieutenant Wright entered the Navy 14th June, 1809; in the following year joined the "Belvidera," and on the occasion of that vessel's celebrated escape from a powerful squadron under Commodore Rodgers, in North American waters, was slightly wounded, he being then midshipman. After serving in several other vessels, and seeing much active service, we find Mr. Liardet evincing a conspicuous degree of bravery, skill, and perseverance in the suppression of piracy, and in the performance of those duties received two severe gun-shot wounds, long before his recovery from which, he resumed the active duties of his profession. As a reward for these services, he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant 18th March, 1824, and appointed to the command of the schooner "Lion," in which vessel he succeeded in destroying several piratical establishments on the coast of Cuba, capturing nine piratical vessels. He attained the rank of commander 28th June, 1838, and was appointed to the second-captaincy of the "Powerful" 84, Captain afterwards Sir Charles Napier, in which vessel he assisted, during the war in Syria, in the bombardment of St. Jean d'Acre, for which services he was promoted to post-rank 4th November, 1840, and the following year retired on half-pay. On several occasions this officer distinguished himself by saving life at sea, and his bravery was rewarded by medallions from the Royal Humane Society, besides which he has received several war decorations. He was one of the captains of Greenwich Hospital when he died, and that institution respected his memory by placing a marble bust of him in the "Painted Hall." His brother, William Liardet, was a lieutenant R.N., b. 29th September, 1794; entered the Navy 22nd November, 1806; and in the following year, on board the "Redwing," took part in a very spirited action with a division of Spanish gun-boats and several batteries near Cabritta Point, and a little later he was taken prisoner. He rejoined the "Redwing" in 1813, and had charge of a cutter which assisted in cutting out a well-protected convoy at Morjean. The same year he served in a brilliant attack on the batteries at Cassis, where the British succeeded in capturing two heavy gun-boats and 26 vessels laden with merchandise, two of which were brought out by Mr. Liardet himself. He proved instrumental to the capture of a large number of merchantmen and privateers during the whole term of his attachment to the "Redwing," and was engaged in nearly every boat and battery affair in which that vessel was concerned. Including the occasion above alluded to, he was twice taken prisoner by the enemy, although in both instances he was speedily released. After serving in several other ships, lastly, as first-lieutenant on board the "Perseus," he was placed in charge of a station in the Coast Guard, 29th September, 1846. Lieutenant John Faithful Fortescue Wright

He has been the head of many enterprises which have served to develop the resources of that colony. He subsequently entered into pastoral and mercantile pursuits.

Lineage.

ROBERT WOOD, Esq. (the grandfather of Mr. W. D. Wood), who, in early life resided in London, is supposed to have been a descendant of Bishop Nicolas Ridley, one of the English reformers and martyrs of the 16th century; in evidence of which is the fact that a member of the Bishop's family left him, many years ago, a legacy, and the present Mr. W. D. Wood has now in his possession a steel engraving of Bishop Ridley, which has been handed down in his family as an heirloom. By Eliza Walcot, his wife, he had a son,

Lineage.

About ten miles due west from Aberdeen is the Loch of Skene, a considerable sheet of water, and on the north side of it extends the ancient barony of Skene, co-extensive with the more modern parish of the same name. It is bounded on the north by the parishes of Kinellar and Kintore, on the west by the parishes of Kinnernie, now annexed to Clunie and Echt, and on the east by the freedom lands of Aberdeen. The barony consisted of two distinct portions. On the western or larger portion was situated the old tower of Skene, said by tradition to be the first built stone house in Mar. It now forms the west wing of the house of Skene. On Easter Skene was the Church of Skene, now a parish church, but formerly a vicarage dependent upon the mother church of Kintell. These lands were erected into a barony by King ROBERT BRUCE in the year 1317, and have from time immemorial been in the possession of the baronial family of Skene of Skene.

The traditionary origin of the family is thus given by Mr. Alexander Skene, in 1678: "An old tradition there is that the tribe and family of Skene had their origin from Struan Robertson of Athole, and they from M'Donald, and that our first author was a son of the Laird of Struans, and had his first donation immediately from the king, for killing ane devouring wolf in the forest near the freedom land of Aberdeen, for which he got the confirmation of East and Wester Skene to the freedom of Aberdeen, and that with ane coat of arms helmed and flurished relating to the valorous act, viz., three wolfs' heads erased upon the points of three skewens, triumphant in a field of gules; above the helmet ane naked hand holding a laurel branch with this motto, 'Virtutis Regia merces,' which arms are registered in the booke of Heraldry. Under the reign of what king that happened I am not certainly informed, but sure I am that there was lately in the charter chest of the House of Skene a restauration from a forfaiture granted by K. W. the Lion. This is now amissing."

Sir George Mackenzie, in his Science of Heraldry, published two years after, in 1680, gives the same account. He says:—"Some also derive their names, as well as their arms, from some considerable action, and thus a second son of Struan Robertson, for killing of a wolf in Stocket Forrest by a durk in the king's presence, got the name of Skene, which signifies a durk in Irish, and three durk points in pale for his armes." Another manuscript, written not very long after, gives the king's name as "Malcolm Kenmore." But the first appearance of the name of Skene in any authentic document is in 1296, when "Johan de Skene del Counte de Edneburgh," and Johan de Skene, Patrick de Skene del Counte de Aberdene, did homage to King Edward the First (Calendar of Documents relating to Scotland, pp. 203-208). The seals attached to these homages are preserved, and show that Johan de Skene del Counte de Edneburgh, and del Counte de Aberdene, was the same person.

On the death of the last Laird of Skene, in 1827, the succession to his estates fell, under the deed of entail executed by his great grand uncle, Major George Skene, of Caraldstone, and by his elder brother, George Skene of Skene, to his nephew James, Earl Fife, while the male representation of the family devolved upon the Skenes of Hallyards, in Fife. James, 5th Earl Fife, who succeeded his uncle (4th Earl) in 1857, was in the same year created a British Peer, by the title of Baron Skene of Skene.

JAMES SKENE, in Bandonle, afterwards of Wester Corse and Ramore, second son of Alexander IX., of Skene, by "Lord Forbes' daughter," was the first of the sons of the family who bore the designation of "in Bandonle," the Tanistry lands having been acquired by his father. Prior to the 16th century there was little outlet for the sons of such families except to enter the Church, or to have their names inscribed on the rental roll as kindlie tenants of some outlying farm (hence the term Tanistry), which their descendants, if the laird was embarrassed, acquired in property, or they descended to the condition of ordinary farmers. In 1538, James Skene in Bandonle appears as uncle and curator to Alexander Skene of that ilk, and in 1543 he is infett in the sunny third of the lands of Blackhall. He m. Janet Lumsden, daughter of Lumsden of Cushney, and by her had ten sons, viz.,

- I. James (Mr.), who s. his father. ancestor of the Skenes of Wester Corse and Ramore.
- II. William (Mr.), commissary of St. Andrews, d. unm.
- III. Alexander (Mr.), advocate, d. s.p.
- IV. ROBERT, of whom hereafter.
- V. Gilbert (Mr.). In 1536 he was appointed professor of medicine in King's College, Aberdeen, and in 1575 settled in Edinburgh, and was physician to JAMES VI. of Scotland; d. s.p.
- VI. John (Mr.), afterwards Sir John Skene, of Curriehill, Lord Clerk Register, was a celebrated lawyer in the reign of JAMES VI. He m. Helen, daughter of Sir John Somerville, of Camnethan, and had three sons,

James (Sir), of Curriehill, president of the College of Justice, s. his father 1617, and was created a BARONET OF NOVA SCOTIA by CHARLES I., by a patent which is not dated, but which is recorded in the Register of Signatures, 15th January, 1630. He m. Janet, daughter of Sir John Johnston, of Hilton, by whom he had two sons. The elder son, Sir John Skene, 2nd baronet of Curriehill, s. his father in 1633. He sold the estate of Curriehill 1637, and having levied a regiment of men upon his own charges, went to Germany, and d. there without issue.

John, progenitor of the family of SKENE OF HALLYARDS, in Midlothian (now extinct).

Alexander, Keeper of the Register of Hornings, whose son, John, d. without issue.

VII. Duncan (Mr.), of Balnabrieche. In 1559 "incorporated in St. Mary's College, St. Andrews," d. unm.

VIII. Thomas (Mr.), was first a writer, afterwards in Holy Orders.

IX. Andrew, was in 1564 a burgess of Aberdeen. In 1571 he settled in Many, near the northern boundary of Belhelvie.

X. Patrick, d. s.p.

("Mr." was a designation confined at that time exclusively to Masters of Arts.) James Skene in Bandonie led his nephew's retainers to the battle of Pinkie, and was slain there in 1547. His 4th son, ROBERT SKENE, of Belhelvie, was, on 1st October, 1571, admitted as a burgess of Aberdeen. In 1572 he appears amongst the absentees in the burgess roll, his reason being that he had now settled in Belhelvie. Through the centre of the barony of Belhelvie a stream flows through a ravine past the present Belhelvie Lodge. It rises in the farm of Craigies, and passes through Whytecairns, Overhill, Old Overtown, Upper Potterton, Mylne of Potterton, and Mylneden, where it falls into the sea, and south of Mylneden along the shore were the farms of Fife and Blackdog. These farms, with the exception of Craigies, were the possessions of the Skenes in Belhelvie. The Mylne of Potterton, with Overhill and Old Overtown, was then known as the Overmylne, and Mylneden as the Nether Mylne. Robert Skene possessed the former. He was twice married. By his 1st wife, a daughter of David Adie, merchant, burgess of Aberdeen, by Isobel Forbes, his wife, he had issue,

I. Robert.

II. Gilbert.

III. David, ancestor of the SKENES OF RUBISLAW (see Burke's Landed Gentry).

IV. John, appears in Potterton on the 9th July, 1595, and on 12th March, 1598, in Whytecairns. He is last mentioned in 1599, and appears to have d. without issue.

V. Thomas, appears to have s. his brother John in the occupation of Whytecairns, and in 1626 there is mention of Gilbert Skene in Whytecairns. His successor was PATRICK SKENE, of whom hereafter.

I. Violet, m. in 1602, John Forbes.

Robert Skene m. secondly, 6th July, 1574, Margrett Forbes, and by her had one son and one daughter, VI. James, who became servitor to his uncle, Sir John Skene of Curriehill.

II. Janet.

He d. before the year 1597, probably in 1593.

PATRICK SKENE, Esq., above-mentioned, who s. to Whytecairns, d. in 1704, leaving three sons,

I. JAMES, of whom presently.

II. Andrew, of Whytecairns, m. 8th July, 1704, Elizabeth Perry, and had a son, John, b. 12th April, 1710, and a daughter, Margaret.

III. Patrick, merchant, settled in Old Aberdeen, and m. 17th June, 1701, Elspeth Rhind, heiress of Thomas Rhind, merchant, by whom he had, 1. George, b. 1706; and 2. Thomas, of Old Aberdeen, merchant, b. 17th January, 1713; in 1774 served heir to his mother; was one of the magistrates of Old Aberdeen, and was well known as Bailie Skene of the Auldtown; d. s.p. 1797.

Bridge of Fairfield.

BRIDGE, HENRY HAMILTON, Esq. of Fairfield and Ashcott, Wairarapa, Napier, New Zealand, J.P., b. 8th October, 1844; unm.

Lineage.

Not only tradition, but documentary and other evidence, leads to the conclusion that John Bridge (the ancestor of the Bridge family in America, settled there since 1632) was descended from the same stock as the family of which we treat, and near of kin to William Bridge, the celebrated Puritan divine of Norwich, and a prominent member of the Westminster Assembly. John Bridge being a fellow-townsmen of John Harwood, and, like him, interested in the intellectual, moral, and religious welfare of the infant colony, it is probable that he took some part in the foundation of what has now become the celebrated Harvard University at Cambridge, Mass. The late General Garfield, president of the United States, is included in the genealogy of this family, members of the same having held divers important posts under the United States Government.

STEPHEN BRIDGE, Esq., belonged to a family long resident in co. Essex, England, especially in the Colnes, where their registers go back many generations. Mr. Legge went to Tasmania in 1827, and took up land on the Break o'Day River, receiving from Government grants of 1,000 and 1,500 acres, and afterwards purchased additional blocks.

Lineage.

It is recorded that the family of Legge came originally from Venice, where it was noble and wealthy, in the 10th century, the name then being De la Lega.

The branch from which the present family is descended settled at Legges, near Tunbridge, co. Kent, England, about the 12th century.

A member of the family, THOMAS LEGGE, served the office of sheriff for the city.

London in 1343, and was lord mayor in the years 1346 and 1353. In 1338, this opulent citizen lent EDWARD III £300 towards carrying on the war with France, which was a very considerable sum in those days, and more than any other citizen advanced, except the lord mayor and Simon de Frauncis, who each lent £800 in the ensuing year. Alderman Legge is stated to have m. Lady Elizabeth Beauchamp, daughter of Thomas, Earl of Warwick; he had two sons, SIMON, his heir, and John, knight of the shire for Surrey, 1379, beheaded by Wat Tyler's rebels. From Simon, the elder son, descended

WILLIAM LEGGE, who went to Ireland in the 15th century, and settled in co. Tipperary, where this branch of the family continued to reside until the family estates were broken up and sold by Mr. R. V. Legge's father in the beginning of the present century. During the last century the family seats in co. Tipperary were Garrane and Ballinderry, and also a large estate in England, called Pinner, which was, however, bequeathed to the second Earl of Dartmouth by Mr. R. V. Legge's great grand-uncle, Major Francis Legge, governor of Nova Scotia. William Legge m. Anne, only daughter of John, son of Miles, Lord Bermingham. He d. at the advanced age of 90, and was s. by his son,

EDWARD LEGGE, vice-president of Munster during the lieutenancy of his kinsman, Sir Charles Blount, Lord Mountjoy, the companion of Walter Raleigh. This gentleman m. Mary, daughter of Percy Walsh, Esq. of Moyvalley, and had six sons and seven daughters. From one of these sons the present Mr. R. V. Legge is supposed to be descended. The eldest son, Colonel William Legge, was brought out of Ireland by his godfather, Henry Danvers, Earl of Danby, and sent by him to serve as a volunteer under Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden; and he fought afterwards under Prince Maurice of Orange, in the Low Countries. On his return to England, he was first constituted keeper of the king's wardrobe, during life; and made, soon after, groom of the bedchamber. Colonel Legge, during the Civil Wars, became eminently distinguished by his faithful attachment to CHARLES I, and his persevering exertions in the royal cause, before and after the death of the king. At the battle of Worcester he was wounded and taken prisoner, and would have been executed, if his wife had not contrived his escape from Coventry gaol in her own clothes. He was high in favour after the Restoration, and enjoyed several lucrative and honourable offices, amongst them the governorship of Oxford. From him is descended the Earl of Dartmouth (see Burke's Peerage).

MICHAEL LEGGE, Esq. of Ballinderry and Rodeen, co. Tipperary, Ireland, son of EDWARD LEGGE, Esq., m. Anne, daughter of Simon Young, Esq. of Brookfield, co. Tipperary, and had issue,

Lineage.

The family of Acland is one of great antiquity. The pedigree recorded in the Visitation of Devon, A.D. 1620, commences with BALDWIN ECCELIN, whose son, BALDWIN ACALEN, of Acalen, in the parish of Land Key, Devon, was living temp. HENRY III., but the antiquity of the family is also shown by a deed in Pole's MS. Deeds and Charters, in which mention is made of HUGH DE ACALEN, temp. HENRY II. The visitation pedigree carries down the family link by link to HUGH ACLAND, of Acland, living at the time the visitation was made. He was eldest son of JOHN AKELAND, of Akeland, by Margaret, his wife, daughter and co-heiress of Hugh Radcliffe, of Stepney, and elder brother of Sir John Acland, Knt. of Columb John, high sheriff of Devon in 1608. Sir John was distinguished by his zealous devotion to the cause of royalty; and at one time the garrison of Columb John was the only armed force (according to Lord Clarendon) which CHARLES I. had in the whole county of Devon. He m. Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Francis Vincent, Bart., by whom he had (with two daughters, Eleanor, the wife of Sir John Davie, Bart., and Susanna, who m. first, Edward Halsall, Esq.; and secondly, John Carleton, Esq.) three sons, who in turn inherited the baronetcy.

Mr. Thomson arrived in the colony of New Zealand, as early as 1856, from the Straits Settlements, where he had spent some eighteen years, and where he had been for a long period chief surveyor. He also acted there as a civil engineer, and in that capacity constructed the Horsburgh Lighthouse, which gained him a high reputation. This lighthouse, which was begun in May, 1850, and completed in July, 1851, is erected on the rock of Pedra Branca, in the China seas. On account of the Indian climate proving unsuitable to him, Mr. Thomson removed to New Zealand, where he landed in Auckland, and, proceeding south, arrived at Otago, of which province he accepted the post of chief surveyor, and his labours in that capacity led, in no small degree, to the opening up of the province—first to the squatter, and afterwards to the agriculturist. He held, for many years, the joint offices of chief surveyor, chief commissioner of Crown lands, and provincial engineer of Otago, in which last capacity he directed the work of the removal of Bell's Hill, Dunedin. He was appointed surveyor-general of the colony of New Zealand, in May, 1876, from which office he retired in 1879, when he settled in Southland, and on one of his properties, near Invercargill, built the mansion of Lennel. He was for a time mayor of Gladstone, after his retirement from the surveyor-generalship, and, in 1881, unsuccessfully contested the representation of Mitaura in parliament. He was president of the Southland Institute, since its institution, the author of several books, and the translator of Hakavit Abdulla from the Malay. He was a member of the Royal Scottish Society of Arts, a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, a member of the Natural History Society of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, a member of the New Zealand Institute, and the founder of the Otago Institute. Mr. H. J. Washbourn probably belongs to the younger oranch of the Washbournes of Washbourne, the elder branch of which is represented by the Money-Kyrles of Homme House, Much Marcle, co. Hereford (see Burke's Landed Gentry). The tradition is that during the Civil Wars the family sacrificed all "save honour" in the Stuarts' cause. Nash observes of Little Washbourne, anciently Wasseborne—"It is sometimes called Knight's Washbourne, from the knightly character of the family who take their surname from thence." This village and that of Great Washbourne were once their property. Thomas Washbourne, D.D., who was incumbent of the church of St. Mary-de-Lode, Gloucester, was a member of the same family. He published a volume of poems, still extant, and on the occasion of the Restoration preached a sermon in the cathedral at Gloucester to commemorate the event.

Ralston of Hampden.

RALSTON, JOHN, Esq. of Hampden, Deddington, Tasmania, J.P. for the district of Evandale, b. 10th October, 1850; is unm.

Lineage.

Crawford, in his History of Renfrewshire, says, "This very ancient family is descended from the Macduffs, Thanes, or Earls of Fife (rendered illustrious by tradition as having slain Macbeth, and restored the rightful sovereign to the throne of Scotland); one of whom, having had a son named Ralph, who obtained a grant of lands in Renfrewshire, he called them after himself (as was common in those days), Ralphstoune, and this, softened down in time to Ralston, became the family name." He refers to charters, &c., wherein the family are named as early as 1272 and 1346.

Robertson, in his History of Ayrshire, says:—The first of them, however, I shall begin with, is,

JOHN DE RALSTOUNE, who flourished in the reign of JAMES THE SECOND of Scotland, and who rose to the highest honours of the church and state. In 1444, he was made lord keeper of the privy seal; in 1448, lord bishop of Dunkeld; and in 1449, lord high treasurer. He was sent the same year ambassador to the English court; and again in 1452 (see Keith's Catalogue of Scottish Bishops), where he calls him the representative of a most ancient family of the same designation in the shire of Renfrew. From this John de Ralstoune descended, according to tradition,

MATTHEW RALSTON, Esq., of Hampden,

Deddington, Tasmania, b. in co. Wigton, Scotland; emigrated, when about 17 years of age, with his parents, to Tasmania, and after a few years took up land on the Nile River, about 12 miles from Evandale, and there built his residence of Hampden, where his family were all born. (His father also took up land near Evandale, and built his residence, now called Logan.) Lineage.

The nobility of the Holy Roman Empire was conferred on the ancient and distinguished family of Stieglitz by patent from JOSEPH II, Emperor of Germany and Austria, bearing date, at Vienna, 15th December, 1765. The family, connected in ancient times with the civil and military service of Saxony, was originally from Bohemia, where, among the archives of the city of Pilsen, it is recorded that, during many centuries, several members were raised to the first dignities of the State, and one especially, named Bartholomaeus, was, by His Imperial Majesty RUDOLPH II, favoured with particular consideration.

A tradition reports that this Bartholomaeus was granted hereditary nobility in 1583 by the Emperor RUDOLPH II as Barthol. Stieglitz von Czenkow (a place not far from Pilsen), and that his descendants, being persecuted on account of their following the doctrine of Luther, had to leave their estates, and to proceed to Saxony without title or wealth.

In the 13th and 14th centuries lived a family of Stieglitz (also spelt Stiglitz, Steglitz) on their estates in Pommerland and Brandenburg, the traces of which disappear in the 14th century, just at the time when we read for the first time of a family of the same name resident in and near Pilsen.

The two members of the family on whom hereditary titles were conferred by the Emperor JOSEPH II, 15th December, 1765, were CHRISTIAN LUDWIG (i.e., Lewis). member of the High Court of Justice at Leipzig, and Wilhelm (i.e., William) Ludwig, colonel of a regiment in the service of the Elector of Saxony; the former being the ancestor of the Irish-Australian branch of the family, and the latter of the German branch, which is still existing in Germany, the members of which have been mostly in the royal Saxon civil or military service, one having been a general in the Prussian-Austrian War in 1866. The mother of the celebrated Austrian Field-Marshal Baron Gablenz was also a member of this branch.

Lineage.

The family of Currie was seated at Dunse, Berwickshire, Scotland, from 1570 to 1765, and this family claims descent from a cadet of Currie of that ilk, Annandale. The elder line merged in the Johnstons of Annandale by the marriage of its heiress in 1550.

Sir Walter de Currie swore allegiance to EDWARD I, 1296. Adam de Currie assisted Wallace Sanquhar. Piers de Currie, celebrated in Scottish ballad and in ancient Norse chronicles for his heroic achievements and death fighting against Haco at the battle of Largs in 1263.

About the middle of the seventeenth century, Hartwoodburn, Selkirkshire, became the property of the Currors or Curries, and in 1713 it was possessed by George Currie, from whom the present J. L. Currie, Esq., is said to descend.

In 1690 the name was spelt Currier, other spellings of the name being Corry, Corrie, Curry, Curror, and Currie.

Lineage.

The old Scottish family of PERSON of LOCHLANDS, PIERSON of the barony of BALMADIES, Forfarshire, and PEARSON of the barony of KIPPENROSS, Dumbane, Perthshire, of which the Hon. William Pearson is head, appears under various spellings, in some of the earliest official records of Scotland. This family is described as then "ancient," in 1684, by John Ochterlony of The Guynd, in his Account of the Shire of Forfar.*

In the Ragman Roll—the sealed instrument of fealty subscribed by the representatives of Scotland, to EDWARD I, of England, in his office as arbitrator between Bruce and Baliol—Wautier Pieressone (del Comte de Berewyk) signs as landowner in Berwickshire, 28th August, 1296. In a safe conduct granted by EDWARD III, of England, signed by the king at Westminster, 11th June, 1369, David Perisone, "mercator de Scotia," is permitted to pass through England, "cum quatuor sociis equitibus." Six others, named in the same document, have passes for two mounted companions each. The safe conduct provides against the export of bows and arrows to the prejudice of England. From 1372 to 1390, David Perisone, and his brothers, Alexander and John, were comptrollers of the customs of North Berwick, Dumfries, and Haddington.

In the Close Rolls, 20 Ric. II, 27th June, 1396, "The king (RICHARD II) commands his cousin, Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland, to order the release of the Scots merchants and their goods, lately wrecked in a ship of Henry Pierson's, on the coast of Werkworth, last Lent, and said to bein his (the earl's) custody, that the truce be not broken."

In 1425, the head of the family, JOHN DE PERISSON, was burgess of Linlithgow, and *servitor (generosus) to the king, JAMES I, of Scotland. A payment out of the customs of Linlithgow is ordered to him "by the king's ring, to the auditors." In 1450, his eldest son, THOMAS, held lands at Blackness, Eister Liff, Forfarshire, at whose death, in 1466, sasine of these lands (which now form part of the west-end of Dundee) was granted to his two daughters, Mariota and Sybilla Persoun.

Henry, brother of John de Perisson, was bailie of Linlithgow, 1434. His son, Thomas Peresone, was one of the clerks of the Chapel Royal, Edinburgh, 1467. John Person was procurator for the Abbot of Culross in 1489 in all places pertaining to that Abbey, in the burgh of Dunfermline, and Sir Andro Pierson was one of the monks of the Abbey of Dunfermline at that date (see Ross's Old Dunfermline).

In 1506, the nephew of Thomas Peirson, of Blackness, servitor (armiger) to George (Heburn),† "Abbas de Arbroath," had a charter of "ly Rude with pertinents in ly Almory de Arbroath." The chartulary of the abbey contains several charters, granting lands to Thomas Peirson and his successors. A grant was made, 1st June, 1506, to THOMAS PIERSON, "et Mariote, Sponse sue Moderne" (present or second wife), "dimidium tercię partis ville nostre de Southterre." Thomas Peirson married, as his second wife, his cousin, Mariota, daughter and co-heiress (with her sister, Sybilla) of Thomas of Blackness. Thomas and Mariota Persoun, on the 13th October, 1508, obtained a grant of lands of Kepty (now part of Arbroath, on which the railway station is placed), Arbroath, which, with the other grants, formed the nucleus of the future property of Lochlands. Thomas Peirson, m. thirdly, Margareta Schort (who survived her husband, and afterwards m. Andrew Christeson, who also held land from the abbey of Arbroath), and, dying before 1524, left issue,

I. John, son by first marriage, a monk of Arbroath, who signed as a witness to charters granting abbey lands, 1539, and 1544, to which Cardinal Beton signed as commendator of the abbey of Arbroath.

II. WALTER, of whom hereafter.

III. Thomas, son by first marriage. He had a charter of Clow, 1605. Ancestor of the Pearsons of Clow (between Dunning and Forgundenny, Perthshire), from whom descend Sir Charles Pearson, the present solicitor-general for Scotland and M.P. for the Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrews; and also Lady Paton, wife of Sir J. Noel Paton, Knt., II.M. Limner for Scotland.

IV. David, son by first marriage. His son, Henry, obtained a monastery charter of Nether Baith, Dunfermline Abbey, 1576, and, with Mariora Dewar, his spouse, had sasine of one-third part of the lands of Wester Baith, "now called" Peirson's Baith,* 8th March, 1576. Charter granted by Robert Richardson, "servitor" to Mary Queen of Scots, commendator of St. Mary's Isle, Crail, Fifeshire, and treasurer to the queen.

V. Adam, son by third marriage, inherited abbey lands of Kepty, and others. He m. in 1529, Elizabeth Fethe (who deduced from Duncan de Fethlyn, witness to a charter of Arbroath Abbey, 1254), and had issue,

1. Bernard, b. 1531, d. young.

2. James, inherited the abbey lands of Kepty, Smiddie Croft, and Lamblaw Croft, which included Lochlands, as part of Cairny. He was of Cairny before 1560. In 1599 he disposed that part of the lands of Cairny called Lochlands, to his nephew, Thomas Pierson, son of his next brother, David. James Peirson had issue,

1. "Mr."† David, who had a renewed charter of Cairny, 1601, with old augmentation dues for the abbey lands. His eldest son and heir,

"Mr." Alexander, was designated of Balmadies, 1614, and in 1624 a feu-ferme charter of the lands and barony of Balmadies, or Auchtermerichties, was granted to him and his wife, Isobel Beton, of the family of Beton of Balfour. They had issue three sons and one daughter, 1. James, of whom again; 2. "Mr." Archibald, became sheriff depute of Forfar to David, first Earl of Southesk, sheriff (see Crawford Case, p. 131); 3. "Mr." Robert, who graduated A.M. at St. Andrews,

* The term servitor, at that date, had a different significance from that which now obtains. The office varied in importance, according to the rank of the person attended. For an exhaustive inquiry into this subject, see Gentleman's Magazine, 1836, pp. 22, 23, 106.

† The military abbot of Arbroath, who fell at Flodden, 1513.

* The term "Baith," according to Celtic derivations, signifies land covered with birch trees.

1625, and was appointed to the church at Orkney, 1635, but was deposed from his charge in 1650, for signing in favour of the Marquis of Montrose (see Scott's Fasti Eccles., Scot.); he m. first, Miss Euphame Halero, and secondly, Miss Isabell Collace; 1. Jean, m. William, son of "Mr." Alexander Wedderburne, first of Kingennie, co. Forfar, which family became afterwards baronets of Blackness (see Burke's Peerage and Baronetage). "Mr." Alexander Peirson's eldest son and heir,

James, m. his cousin, Elizabeth, only daughter and heiress of "Mr." Archibald Pierson, of Eister Powrie, second son of David Pierson, of Barnegrene, and had issue, 1. "Mr." Alexander, of him again; 2. John, m. his cousin-german, Elizabeth, daughter of "Mr." Francis Peirson, minister of Kirkmichael, Strathardle; 1. Margaret, m. first, her cousin, John Pierson, of Eister Liff, Dundee. Her husband died before she had been married a year and a day, and she therefore renounced her marriage settlement in Eister Liff. She m. secondly, John Ochterlony, of Wester Seatoun. James Pierson's elder son, Mr." Alexander, m. Lady Margaret Murray, of Lintrose, and d. in 1700, leaving issue, 1. Archibald, baptised 10th December, 1663; d. s.p.; 2. John, d. s.p.; 3. Catherine, b. 1665; m. James Rait, brother of William Rait, of Halgreen. The third son, James, b. 1666, was younger of Balmadies when the property of Lochlands was transferred to him, consequent upon the forfeiture of "Mr." William Pearsons, 1689. He had made, in 1739, a disposition of his whole estate, Balmadies, Lochlands, Barnegrene, Berryfold, and Smiddy Croft, by which his second surviving son, Robert, became his heir on his father's death in 1745. James Pierson m. Margaret, daughter of Sir Alexander Lindsay, of Evelick, bart., and widow of Alexander Arbuthnot, of Findouric (who was commissioner of supply in 1690 and 1702, and d. 1745), and had seven sons, 1. James, b. 1695; d. 1714; 2. John, b. 1699; d. s.p.; 3. "Mr." Robert, of whom presently; 4. William; 5. Alexander; 6. David; 7. Thomas. The third son,

"Mr." Robert, advocate, heir to his father, b. 1701; m. 1740, Ann, daughter of John Fraser, of Kirkton and Hospitalfield, and d. 1763, leaving issue, 1. James, of whom again; 2. John; 3. David; 1. Margaret; 2. Mary, b. 1746; d. 1771. The eldest son, James, was a merchant in Riga when he was made heir special to his father in 1765. He m. Angelica Maria de Trompowska, of Livonia, and had issue, 1. James, of whom presently; 2. Robert, m. Charlotte, daughter of John Hay, of Riga; 3. John, resided in Poland. The eldest son,

James, of Balmadies, m. Margaret Ochterlony, of The Guynd, and had issue one son and one daughter, viz., James Alexander, b. 1800; s. to The Guynd on the death of his maternal uncle, John Ochterlony; m. Elizabeth, daughter of John Grant, of Glenmoriston, and d. s.p. 1873; and Frances, now of The Guynd, residing in Cheltenham, unm. The property of Balmadies was sold, before 1820, to Henry Stephens, the well-known author of the Book of the Farm. By him it was re-sold in 1830 to the trustees of Sir Charles Ochterlony, who then called the property by his own name.

11. James, s. to the property of Cairny, and m. Janet, daughter of William Guthrie, of Gagie, grandson of Alexander Guthrie, of Guthrie, dying in 1618. He had assigned the property of Cairny to John Ochterlony, of Montrose, but his son, James, was still infeft in the "town and lands of Cairny in security of an annual rent upon them." James Peirson represented Arbroath in the Scottish Parliament of 1628. His son, Alexander, was elected treasurer of Montrose in 1641, without previous service. He became bailie of Montrose in 1642. This town had declared for the National Covenant of 1638. In 1644 it was subjected to a night attack, organised by young Irvine, of Drum, with 300 soldiers, horse and foot. During the mêlée, Alexander Peirson was "slayne." The feeling of the country was shown by the passing of an Act of Parliament of CHARLES I, 1647 ("Act Erle of Eglintonne"), by which "the relict and bairnis of Alexr. Peirson, one of the first to suffer in his bluid and his estate for ye guid caus," were assigned "a somme of 10,000 merks out of ye first and readiest sommes due and payable to ye public by ye auld laird of Drum, and heirby prefer said relict and bairnis to all other parties."

3. David, of Barnegrene, became magistrate and bailie of Arbroath, 1564. He had confirmation by JAMES V, at Stirling, of a charter granted by John (Sir John Hamilton), Abbot of Aberbrothoe, of the abbey lands of Barnegrene, 1578. He represented Arbroath in the Scottish Parliament, 1579. Acting officially, 1589, he granted sasine of a garden, lying within the walls of the Abbey of Arbroath, possessed by unquhile (i.e., deceased) John Peirson (monk). David Peirson d. before 1599, leaving issue,

1. Thomas, who s. to the abbey lands of Barnegrene. Loehlands, including Kepty, had been disposed to him by his uncle, James Pierson, of Cairny. These lands were incorporated in one charter by JAMES VI, under the Great Seal, dated from Holyrood House, 23rd November, 1599. Thomas Peirson had represented Arbroath at the Convention of Burghs, held at Aberdeen, 1590; Montrose, 1591; and Edinburgh, 1592. He obtained for Arbroath a charter as a royal burgh, signed at Holyrood, 23rd November, 1599, and took infeftment as attorney for the provost and officials of the burgh, 10th July, 1601. In 1612, he was chosen moderator of the Convention of Royal Burghs, held at Arbroath that year. Thomas Pierson m. Miss Agnes Boswell, and had issue, 1. "Mr." David, of whom again; 2. "Mr." Thomas, who became minister of Forfar, and m. Miss Elizabeth Maule, of the ancient family of Maule, of Panmure, whose only son, "Mr." David, minister at the Kirk of Kirkaldy, left an annual rent of £160 out of the lands of Lochlands, in 1682, to his son and heir, Thomas Peirson; 3. William; 4. James, became town clerk of Arbroath; 1. Janet, m. John Ochterlony, of The Guynd, Forfarshire. The arms of John Ochterlony and Janet Peirson, sculptured in stone, with their initials and the date 1646, remain fixed on one of the buildings of The Guynd. Their great grandson, John Ochterlony, wrote the Account of the Shyre of Forfar; 2. Isobell, m. her cousin, Archibald Peirson, of Chapelton and Westhall, sheriff depute of Forfar, who matriculated arms, differenced by two crescents, as the second son of the second son of his house. Thomas Pierson's eldest son, "Mr." David, who s. to Loehlands on the death of his father, had travelled in early life, and has described his having seen the comet of 1618 in Florence. He began at Paris a curious compilation of the folk lore of his time, under the title of Varieties; or a Surveigh of Rare and Excellent Matters, Necessary and Delectable for all Sorts of Persons. Published in London in 1635, this book is still found in old libraries, and is much prized by book collectors. It is pre-faced by many commendatory notices in Latin and quaint old English verse. One of these by William Drummond, of Hawthornden, the poet, closes with the distich:—

 "This booke a world is;
 here if errors be, the like (nay worse) in the great world we see."

"Mr." David Person had issue: 1. Thomas, s. his father, but d. s.p.; 2. James, s. his brother, but d. s.p.; 3. David, s. his father, d. s.p. 1667; 4. "Mr." William. The fourth son,

He was appointed minister of Kinnaird parish, from which he was transferred to Dunfermline, 1663; to Paisley in 1666, and in 1673 the D.D. degree was conferred upon him. He was appointed to a charge in Stirling, 1676. By Mary Livingstone, his wife, he had issue, five sons and two daughters, viz., 1. "Mr." William, of whom again; 2. Thomas; 3. David; 4. John; 5. Robert; 1. Agnes; 2. Mary. The eldest son,

He was one of the rebels in France in the list with Buchan, Cannon, John Crichton, Captain of Clanranald, Sir John McLean of that ilk, &c., against whom the decree of forfeiture was issued, 2nd July, 1695. The decree of forfeiture was set aside in "Mr." William Pearson's instance by the granting of a charter by WILLIAM III, 23rd September, 1696, whereby the estate of Barnegrene and Lochlands passed into the hands of James Peirson, younger of Balmadies, and became incorporated in one free barony of Balmadies.

II. "Mr." Archibald, of Eister Powrie, second son of David of Barnegrene, m. Elizabeth, daughter of Gardyne of Lawton. His only daughter and heiress, Elizabeth, m. her cousin, James Pierson, eldest son and heir of "Mr." Alexander Pierson, of Balmadies.

Next them was Lochiell, and Sir Donald (Mac Donald's) battalion on the left of all.—Special commissions were freely dispensed by JAMES II for this campaign, but the accepted leader of Cannon's Irish contingent was Colonel Pursell, unless he was superseded by one of these commissions, notwithstanding that he was trusted by Cannon.—(See The Grámeid, pp. 237-240.)

* Blackness was sold to Captain Henry Lyell before 1570.

* In Drummond of Balhaldy's memoir of Lochiel, Dundee's disposition of his troops at the battle of Killiecrankie is thus given:—

"Sir John McLean, then a youth of about 18 years, was posted with his battalion on the right, on his left the Irishmen under the command of Collonell Pearson; next then the Tutor of Clanranald, with his battalion; Glengarry with his men were placed next to

The arms of Dean Pearson still exist, sculptured in stone, on the dean's house, Dunblane. The Dunblane issue of the National Covenant of Scotland of 1638, containing mostly signatures of the neighbouring heritors, following those of Rothes, Lindsay, and Montrose, has been preserved in this family from the time of Dean Pearson. On the 9th November, 1633, "Mr." James Peirsoune, minister, and dean of Dunblane, and Jean Drummond, his spouse, obtained a charter under the Great Seal, of the barony of Kippenross, "which lands belonged before, heritably, to Sir James Cheisholme, of Cromlix,* holden by him immediately of the Crown, and which were purely and simply resigned by staff and baton, in the hands of the lords commissioners of exchequer, as in the hands of the king, at Edinburgh, on the 9th November, 1633, in favour of, and for new heritable infefment to, the said James Peirsoune and Jeane Drummond, his spouse, as of new, is hereby given: to be holden of the king and his successors in fee, heritage, and free barony for ever, for the rights and services due and wont."† On the 5th November, 1448, there is a record of a charter by Jonet of Kinross, of Kippenross. Kippenross had been created a barony, 7th March, 1507, by charter of confirmation under the

by a mullet in place of a cinquefoil, and with the motto of the Forfarshire Piersons—Dum spiro spero. They are sculptured in stone over the entrance to the tower of Peffermylue House, in which Mary, Queen of Scots, had sometimes resided when at Craigmillar.

* Helen, daughter of Sir James Cheisholme, of Cromlix, had married David, elder brother of Jean Drummond, who is styled Ladie Kippenross in the old records, in accordance with the custom of the time.

† Original charter of 1633.

Great Seal;—Carta—"Rex confirmavit Johanni Ros de Kippaneros, et heredibus ejus, terras de Kippaneros, Kippanerait, Auchloch, Culinu, &c., incorporavit in manu liberam baroniam de Kippaneros." Dean Pearson built a house over the ancient tower of Kippenross, styled the "Newe house of Kippenross," in 1646. He was requisitioned to lend money to the public (Acta Parl. 1649). He d. in 1658, and his relict re-m. in 1660, Major John Home, of Argaty. She retained the life rent of Kippenross, in right of the original charter of 1633, and d. in 1691. James Pearson and Jean Drummond had issue,

- I. JAMES, of whom hereafter.
- II. David, writer in Edinburgh.
- III. Alexander, b. 1646.
- I. Jean, b. 1633; m. James Belshes, of the family of Belshes of Tofts.

The eldest son,

JAMES PEIRSONE, of Kippenross, b. 1637, was one of the commissioners of supply for Perthshire, 1678, and had his armorial bearings, which were of older date, confirmed at the visitation of Sir Charles Arskine, of Cambo, knight, baronet, Lyon King of Arms, 14th July, 1673. He m. 15th October, 1661, Helline, daughter of Sir John Rollo, of Bannockburn (by his second marriage with Annabella, daughter of George Buchanan, of that ilk), second son of the first Lord Rollo, and had issue, three sons and seven daughters,

- I. James, b. 1664, was one of the victims of Cameron of Lochiel's "very sad and unwarrantable mistake," as recorded by Fountainhall in his Historical Observations. During the Argyle Rebellion in 1685, "Sir Ewen Cameron, of Lockyell's men, throw mistake in not understanding the word fall upon a party of the Perthshire gentlemen, to the number of twelve, commanded by Sir John Graeme, postmaster-general, and under pretence of their being Argyle's men (whether the mistake was innocent or wilful to get their spoyle) they kill five of them, viz., Pearson of Kippencrosse, Paul Do(i)g of Ballingrue, Linton of Pittendreich, Nap(i)er of Balquhapple, &c. Lochiel was so affected at this melancholy accident that he could speak none for some moments, and never was known to weep but on this occasion. At Lochiel's visit to the Court to clear his character in person, His Majesty having desired him to relate the particulars of their late expedition against Argyle, he did it in few words, and in the most modest manner, and carefully avoyding all reflections on the conduct of others, he related his own misfortune in such terms as made His Majesty say that he ought rather to have been pitied and comforted for so afflicting and accidental than accused, and that it was wholly owing to his generals, who ought to have informed him of the posts of the several partys, which would have effectually prevented it."*

II. JOHN, of whom hereafter.

III. Alexander, b. 1672, d. in infancy.

I. Janet, b. 1662; m., 1691, Patrick Graeme, of Inchbraikie, who was outlawed, 1696, for his fatal quarrel with the master of Rollo, in 1691. Graeme had a full remission granted to him in 1720. Their grandson, Captain Patrick Graeme, of the 73rd Regiment, Scotch Brigade, of the Dutch Army, in which he served during the whole of the Seven Years War, s. as eighth laird of Inchbraikie.

II. Joana, b. 1665.

III. Margaret, b. 1666.

IV. Isabelle, b. 1669.

V. Elizabeth, b. 1670; m. Walter Buchanan, of Wester Spittlehau.

VI. Annabella, b. 1673; made a will in favour of her grand nephew John, son of Hugh Pearson.

VII. Anna, b. 1674.

James Pearson d. in 1694, and was s. in Kippenross by his second son,

JOHN PEARSON, of Kippenross, b. 1667, who m. Jean, daughter of the first Sir Patrick Threipland, bart., the royalist, and widow of Alexander Linton of Pittendreich (a fellow victim with James Pearson through Lochiell's mistake in the Argyll Rebellion), and had issue,

I. James, d. young, 7th April, 1711.

II. HUGH, of whom presently.

I. Jean, b. 1702; m. "Mr." William Somerville.

II. Hellen, b. 1703; m. her cousin-german, Captain Patrick Graeme, at Orchill (see Burke's Landed Gentry, ed. 1849), and had one daughter, Helen, who m. George Robertson, of Faskally, co. Perth.

John Pearson became noted throughout his part of Scotland, for his gigantic size and for his hospitality and good-fellowship, according to the customs of the day (see Scotland and Scotsmen in the 18th Century, RAMSAY OF OCHTERTYRE).

HUGH PEARSON, of Kippenross, executed service to his father, 5th January, 1722. He took great interest in his property, and planted, in 1742, the Beech Walk, along the banks of Allan Water, reputed to be the first walk of the kind artificially made in Scotland (see Woods, Forests and Estates of Perthshire, HUNTER). The surpassing beauty of the property is attested in the Letters of Thomas Erskine of Linlathen (p. 8). Erskine spent much of his boyhood there. At Albano, on the road to Rome, he noted an evergreen oak as large as the "Kippenross Tree." This refers to the sycamore, acer-pseudo-platanus, which went by the name of the "Big Tree of Kippenross," in the time of CHARLES II. This tree was planted A.D. 1400, as shown by some old estate papers. Its girth, where the branches separate, was 27 feet 4 inches; and the branches spread to a width of 114 feet. In Loudon's Arboretum et Fructicetum Britannicum, this sycamore is stated to be the largest of its kind in Britain. A drawing of it (taken before it was damaged by lightning, in 1827) is shown in Fittler's Scotia Depicta, Plate XX. Hugh Pearson m. 6th March, 1743, Mistress Agnes Gibb, daughter and co-heiress (with her sister Catherine) of the deceased William Gibb, chirurgion, Edinburgh, and had issue two sons,

I. John, b. 15th December, 1743; executed service to his father, 11th June, 1751, and 29th January, 1755; d. unm.

II. WILLIAM.

The second son,

WILLIAM PEARSON, Esq. of Kippenross, b. 27th January, 1750, executed service to his brother, 11th March, 1772, and m. 25th September, 1775, Jane, only daughter of Sir James Campbell, of Abernchill and Kilbride, 4th baronet (see CAMPBELL OF KILBRYDE), by Margaret, his first wife, daughter and heiress of Captain William Conductor Ball, of Hatton Garden, London, land commissioner for Scotland. In 1778, being then 28 years of age, William Pearson parted with Kippenross to the adjoining proprietor, John Stirling of Kippendavie, and the conjoined property is now known as Kippendavie. The legal arrangements of transfer were completed 9th February, 1781, when "John Stirling of Kippendavie was seized in the barony of Kippenross under life-rent superiority of William Pearson of Kippenross, of parts of the said barony." The boundaries of the barony were Allan Water on the south, Sheriffmuir on the north, Dunblane village on the west, and the Brook of Old Wherry on the east. Dean Pearson's house of Kippenross, or Kippencrosse (said to have been so named after one of the four crosses of St. Blane, anciently known as Kippen Cross, White Cross, Anchor's Cross, and Cross Capley), was burnt down in William Pearson's time. He built the commencement of the present substantial mansion house of Kippenross, which has been much added to by the present owner, Colonel Stirling, whose father, John Stirling of Kippendavie, acquired a wide reputation from his connection with railway enterprise. William Pearson had issue,

I. HUGH, commander R.N., of whom hereafter.

II. John, b. 1783; d. at Westbush, Inveresk, 8th August, 1807.

III. James, b. 1787, was nominated to a cadetship in the Hon. E.I.Co.'s service by Lord Leven and Melville, a cousin of his mother's, through the sisters Katherine and Wilhelmina Nisbet of Dirleton.* On arriving in India in 1804, James Pearson joined the army before the fortress of Bhurtpore. In 1805 he served with the grand army under Lord Lake, in pursuit of Holkar, and subsequently joined the 1st battalion 18th Regiment before the fortress of Callenghur, where he was repeatedly engaged with parties of the enemy. In the expedition to Java against the Dutch, in 1811, he was wounded in the assault of Carnelis, and became entitled to the Peninsula medal with Java clasp. In recognition of his services he was appointed adjutant of an Amboynese corps raised from the prisoners of war. In 1812, in command of a wing of the newly-raised corps, he joined the expedition to Palembang, and was engaged with the deposed Sultan's forces in a severe action in which the commanding officer was killed. In 1815-18 he served in Nepaul, and during the insurrection at Cuttack had a detached command. He was repeatedly engaged with the insurgents, and for his conduct received the thanks of the governor-general, as well as those of the general commanding the division. In 1828 he succeeded as major to the command of the 65th Regiment B.N.I., at Agra, and raised that regiment to an exceptional state of discipline, as testified by Brigadier-General Richards, inspecting officer; finally retiring from the service as major, 1832. He m. 1821, Agnes, youngest daughter of William Richardson, Esq., deceased, late of Keithock, Forfarshire, who matriculated arms 1793, bearing in base a hawthorn tree (derived from the arms of his maternal grandfather, Henry Hathorn, of Aries and Castlewig, Wigtonshire), in place of the lymphad borne in base by his ancestor, Richardson of Smeaton, in recognition of his being commendator of St. Mary's Isle, Crail, Fifeshire, and who was high treasurer of Scotland, 1566. Major Pearson had issue seven sons and four daughters, of whom are,

David Ritchie, M.D. (Edinburgh), late Army Medical Staff and 2nd Batt. Prince Consort's Own Rifle Brigade, now of Kensington, London, representative of this younger branch of the family in England, b. 1837; m. 1869, Jane, elder daughter of James Rae, Esq. (partner in the late firm of Jackson and Rae, merchants, Melbourne, Australia), by Jane Dickson, his wife, whose mother, Janet Irving, was the eldest sister of Edward Irving, the preacher. Dr. Pearson has surviving issue four sons and two daughters, viz.,

1. James Rae, b. 2nd August, 1871, Clare College, Cam., selected candidate, I.C.S.
2. Hugh Drummond, Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, b. 17th February, 1873.
3. Allan Campbell, b. 18th April, 1874.
4. Philip Graeme, b. 1st December, 1877.
1. Muriel Agnes, b. 19th June, 1876.
2. Mary Ursula Lowther, b. 10th September, 1879.

John Richardson, captain, late 95th Regiment, second surviving son of Major Pearson, was a cadet attached to the 6th B.N.I. when the mutiny broke out at Allahabad in 1857. Out of seventeen officers, he was one of the three survivors on detached service at the river who escaped into Allahabad Fort. He served with General Havelock through the subsequent campaign, including ten general actions and first relief of Lucknow, and served in the defence of Lucknow till its final relief. He was mentioned in despatches, 30th December, 1857, for services in the field; was given command of field detachment, Saugur District, and served as staff officer 6th Column Bundelkund Field Force, adjutant Meerut Light Horse and 3rd Bengal Irregular Cavalry; was again mentioned in despatches, 24th January, 1859, and exchanged into the 95th (Derbyshire) Regiment on attaining the rank of captain. He m. 1870, Archange Margaret, only daughter of the late John Stewart Lyon, Esq. of Kirkmichael, Dumfriesshire, and has issue, one son and one daughter.

- II. Agnes Catherine, b. 1780; d. unm., 26th July, 1865.

William Pearson's eldest son, HUGH PEARSON, Esq., commander R.N., b. 1778, entered the Royal Navy in 1793. He was mentioned in despatches relating to Lord Bridport's victory off L'Orient, and in

For his services on the north coast of Spain, as first lieutenant of the "Arethusa," he had conferred upon him the rank of lieutenant-colonel in the Spanish service. Having had the property of Myrecairnie, in Fifeshire, left to him, he retired from the navy as commander, at the conclusion of the war, 1815. He subsequently purchased the property of Vellore, Linlithgowshire, and m. 1817, Helen, daughter of Thomas Littlejohn, Esq. of Stirling, N.B., having had issue by her seven sons and seven daughters, viz.,

Burke's, Sir Bernard, Peerage, Baronet-

AGE, KNIGHTAGE, &c., for 1891. 53RD EDITION. This Peerage and Baronetage is the only one extant which combines, in one volume, the full genealogical or past, as well as the present, account of all the Peers and Baronets of the realm. The Baronetage, incorporated with the Peerage, is complete in every detail as to the Lineage and present condition of each Baronet and his family. The Knightage has been much enlarged by the introduction of the family connections of the Knights of the several Orders of the Knights Bachelors and of the Members of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council. Precedence.—This important subject has been fully dealt with, and the Lists may be relied on as authoritative. The Peers, Baronets, and Knights, and the Companions of the several Orders of Knighthood are placed according to their relative rank; and there is given a Scale of General or Social Precedence, and a List of the Maids of Honour to the Queen, with their relative Precedence. Tables of Precedence of Diplomatic Agents; Relative Rank of the Officers of the Navy and Army; and Precedence in the Colonies, the Dominion of Canada, and the Indian Empire are also supplied. There will also be found official Lists of THE ORDER OF THE INDIAN EMPIRE, THE ROYAL ORDER OF VICTORIA AND ALBERT, THE IMPERIAL ORDER OF THE CROWN OF INDIA, THE VICTORIA CROSS, THE ALBERT MEDAL, and THE ROYAL RED CROSS. The heraldic department includes not only the engravings of the arms of both PEERS and BARONETS, but also the written blazon or descriptions. To this work is added a Key, or Comprehensive Alphabetical List, by means of which every titled personage, and many others, can be easily traced. Nearly 2,000 pages, super royal Svo., cloth gilt. Price £1 18s. (Published Annually.)

- "The most complete and monumental of Peerages is the well-known compilation of Sir Bernard Burke, C.B., Ulster King of Arms. . . . But Burke's Peerage is quite above criticism; it is unique, and remains by itself as the type of a book of reference."—Times.
- " . . . All students of English History must feel interested in the work. To such students, in fact, 'Burke' is an indispensable biographical dictionary, and one which needs no recommendation. . . ."—Times.
- "The reader who takes up 'Burke' does so with the full consciousness that every statement, every detail, however small, has been subjected to the closest scrutiny and most stringent revision."—Morning Post.
- "The present edition is marked by the accurate editorship that has justly entitled it to be considered a complete genealogical and heraldic dictionary."—The Daily Telegraph.
- "It is scarcely necessary to add that the present edition of Burke's Peerage is distinguished by the completeness and accuracy that have hitherto constituted what is one of the most entertaining and suggestive books in the world, a volume of reference that everybody may consult with confidence."—Saturday Review.
- "This work supplies, with admirable minuteness and perfect correctness, the information so eagerly sought for."—Illustrated London News.
- "Without denying the merit of other peerages, this is par excellence the book for those who desire to know, not only about living persons, but about their ancestors."—The Graphic.
- "Sir Bernard can put forward the hope, scarcely distinguishable from a claim, that his present volume is 'in all respects complete.'"—Notes and Queries.
- "Sir Bernard Burke's handsome volume easily maintains its position as the most comprehensive, the most complete, and most reliable of all the Peerages."—Vanity Fair.
- "The success of Sir Bernard Burke in bringing his great work through so many editions must be regarded as a marvellous achievement, worthy of his learning and literary reputation. It is not a dry record of dates and names, or a collection of heraldic symbols, but the cultured taste of the author has made it attractive by historical illustrations and notes of many incidents in the career of great families, which have the charm of romance."—Dublin Daily Express.

Burke's, Sir Bernard, Landed Gentry

of Great Britain and Ireland, being a record of the Lineage, &c., of about 4,500 Families, with a description of their Arms, Crests, &c. SEVENTH EDITION. Thoroughly Revised throughout, 1886. This edition of the Landed Gentry has been compiled from communications made by the chiefs and heads of families from their private papers, traditions and genealogies. The great aim has been to arrive at accuracy, and, in order to attain this end, every available source of information has been exhausted, and a correspondence carried on which has secured many thousands of communications from those most competent to improve and correct the work. Apocryphal statements, which had crept into former editions, have been expunged, erroneous particulars and incorrect descents discovered and omitted, and some memoirs excluded as being no longer associated with the possession of landed property. In two volumes, uniform with "The Peerage," "General Armory," &c. 2,088 pages, super royal 8vo., cloth gilt. Price £3 3s.

"Burke's 'Peerage and Baronetage' and 'Landed Gentry,' supplying information sought for on so many occasions, have become of absolute necessity in every well-stored library and well-furnished drawing room."—Illustrated London News.

"We need scarcely say that the compiler's name is a guarantee for lucidity as regards style, and accuracy as regards facts."—The Graphic.

"A work which has for many years commanded general confidence, and stood the ordeal of criticism."—Notes and Queries.

"We have no hesitation in saying that no library in England will be complete which does not possess on its shelves a copy of this dictionary."—Court Circular.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"Indispensable to the Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces."—Saturday Review.

"The Service Almanack is a model of careful and judicious editing. After a close scrutiny of its 344 pages, we have not come across a single error. The volume contains nothing we would dispense with, and nothing occurs to us as being omitted. It thoroughly justifies its title as the Service Almanack.—Broad Arrow.

"A more useful manual it would be difficult to find."—United Service Magazine.

"Rivals 'Whitaker' in the completeness with which it deals with its subject. There appears to be no item of Service information which is not to be found in its pages, and it is sure to prove a most acceptable boon."—Whitehall Review.

"The first thing that strikes us, on looking at this Almanack, is astonishment that it has never occurred to any one to bring out such a book before. The more credit, therefore, to the gallant editor or editors who have at last given us an Almanack worthy of all the Services."—Army and Navy Magazine.

"THE SERVICE ALMANACK is the best shilling's worth of information connected with the Services we have seen for a long time. It contains a little of everything, and a good deal of many things. The 'Year's Journal,' and the 'Dictionary of Battles' are most useful for reference, and the list of the winners of all honours during the year a novel and excellent idea. The editing is excellent throughout."—United Service Gazette.

"A work of reference which is sure to be handled constantly during the year. The list of members of both Houses of Parliament who are serving or have served in Her Majesty's Forces strikes us as particularly useful."—United Service Magazine.
